THEATER ORDINANCE COMES BACK TO LIFE

According to Clerk's Minutes it Was Passed Unanimously by the Common Council, Although the Aldermen Did Not Know What They Were Doing—Veto by the Mayor Probable in Order to Avoid Complications.

That the ordinance prohibiting the licensing of a theater within 200 feet of a church was actually passed by the common council at its session last week Tuesday evening is the information revealed on the city clerk's minutes of the meeting although the supposition, among the aldermen, press and public, was that the unanimous vote was to refer the proposed ordinance to the committee on laws and rules and the corporation counsel. It is reported that Mayor Canfield will veto the ordinance as it stands. The mayor did not care to comment on the matter today but it is understood that he takes the position that the ordinance was passed, regardless of what the council thought it was doing, but not in accordance with the rules and by inadvertence.

The city clerk's record shows the offering of Alderman Purvis's resolution which included an ordinance to the effect named, this matter coming up following the rejection of the adverse report on the subject as previously rendered by the laws and rules committee and corporation counsel. After the concluding line, "I move the adoption of the following proposed ordinance" in the Purvis resolution-ordinance, the record reads:

"On roll call the following vote was recorded: Ayes—Aldermen Smith, McKittrick, Schick, Marquardt, Leverich, Parish, Shultis, Brown, Connelly, Hall and Purvis. Ayes, 11; noes, none."

City Clerk Doremus stated today that previous to the vote on the ordinance, President Crane had stated that an ordinance could not be passed at this meeting and at his suggestion the word "proposed" was placed before the word "ordinance."

The city clerk is of the opinion that the vote was merely a reference to the committee on laws and rules but the record shows that the aldermen passed the Purvis ordinance first and referred it afterward. Placing of the cart before the horse in this manner may be the basis of a veto from Mayor Canfield. There is bound to be considerable stir over the matter as aldermanic circles and city hall is buzzing with this latest development in the situation.

Herewith is given a copy of preamble and ordinance, as adopted:

By Alderman Purvis:

Whereas, application has been made to the common council by St. John's Episcopal Church and representatives of various other religious bodies of this city for the passage of a proposed ordinance, pursuant to section 120, sub-division 21, of the city charter, enacting that no license shall be granted by the common council to any theater, opera house, concert hall, or other place of public entertainment of similar character, or to the person or corporation conducting same, which shall be located or maintained within a distance of 200 feet from any church or other building devoted to or used for the purpose of religious worship in this city, or schools, and prohibiting the maintenance or conduct of any such theater, moving picture show, concert hall, or other similar place of public entertainment within a distance aforesaid from any such church or place of religious worship.

Resolved, that said application be, and hereby is, approved and granted, and I move the adoption of the following proposd ordinance:

The common council of the city of Kingston do enact and ordain as follows:

Section 1.—That no license shall be granted by the common council of the city of Kingston to any theater, opera house, concert hall, or other place of public entertainment or to any person or corporation to conduct the same, for the exhibition of any theatrical or operatic performances, moving picture shows, concerts, or other public entertainments of similar character to be conducted or maintained within a distance of 200 feet of any church or other building devoted to or used for the purpose of religious worship in this city; or schools; and the maintenance or conduct of any such theater moving picture show, concert or other place of public entertainment within 200 feet of any such church or place of religious worship or school is hereby prohibited.

Section 2.—This ordinance will take effect immediately. Nothing, however, in this ordinance contained shall be construed to abrogate, annul, or prevent the renewal of any existing license now in force in the said city of Kingston.

(The above was referred by the chair to the committee on laws and rules and the corporation counsel to draft an ordinance.)

ACCIDENTAL SHOT KILLS GUARDSMAN

Member of Albany Company Instantly Killed While on Duty Near Bonticou Tunnel on Tuesday Night.

Hugh Taylor, a private of Company C. of Albany, which is patrolling the Catskill aqueduct in the vicinity of New Paltz, was accidentally killed by a companion while on guard duty Tuesday night. A corporal's guard started to investigate the nature of moving lights near Shaft 1, which connects with the Bonticou tunnel, and in order to reach the shaft found it necessary to climb a steep hill. Taylor was in the lead. A member of the squad a few feet behind him stumbled and his gun was discharged, the bullet entering Taylor's back at the hip and after passing through the lungs emerging at the shoulder. Coroner Kelly is making an investigation.

Taylor was 23 years old, born in England and for the past six years a resident of Albany. He had been in the National Guard the past two years. He was employed by the New York Central as a car inspector.

ITALY SUFFERS FROM SUBMARINES

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Rome, Feb. 14.—The intensification of submarine warfare in the Tyrrhenian and Mediterranean seas is the source of the gravest concern in government circles. If the reports current at Genoa, Naples and other ports are only partially true, the Mediterranean is now the scene of the most bitter and relentless submarie campaign of the whole war.

Officials figures are not available. The sinking of Italian steamers or of steamers directed to Italian ports is never announced and since the government began to insure Italian steamers directly, even Lloyd's fail to announce them.

Notwithstanding the precaution taken and the rigorous censorship enough has been printed to confirm the Swiss report of a few months ago that Germany would do her utmost to starve Italy and paralyze her industrial life in the hope of inducing her to conclude a separate peace or, at least, compel her to act as a peacemaker among the Allies.

Shipowners and brokers declare that of the daily average of ten Allied and neutral vessels that have been sunk since December, 7 or 8 have been sent to the bottom in the Mediterranean.

According to a veteran sea captain, known in every American port between Portland and Galveston, no less than 27 submarines have been sighted in the Mediterranean and are now operating between Gibraltar and Salonika. The majority of them are stationed around Malta, which is a main station on the English route to India, Australia and the South African colonies. Also every Italian steamer plying between Sicily and Tripoli must touch there.

SCANDINAVIANS JOIN IN PROTEST

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, Feb. 14.—Three Scandinavian countries—Norway, Sweden and Denmark—have joined in a protest to Germany against the new submarine warfare edict, according to a Reuter despatch from Copenhagen. Each government has handed an identical note to its German minister.

The notes declare that Germany's action in declaring a barred zone is clearly illegal, and that it is in direct violation of international law inasmuch as it does not constitute a naval blockade. The difficulties which neutral shipping must undergo because of this decree are dwelt on at length.

INTERVENTION IN CUBA POSSIBLE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Feb. 14—American intervention in Cuba to re-establish a stable government in the island loomed up as a strong probability today when a long report from American Minister Gonzales was turned over to Major Hugh L. Scott, chief of staff of the army.. The report was a detailed one giving a full acount of revolutionary activities in Cuba and indicating that the revolutionists under the leadership of former President Gomez are gaining the upper hand.

The elections today in Santa Clara province, which will decide the presidential fight which has hung fire for many months, are expected to precipitate serious trouble. Gomez is reported to be in full control in Santa Clara and rebel forces have forced the municipal authorities to flee from Santiago City and occupied the town.

Trouble was scented by the American minister a week ago when former President Gomez left Havana on his private yacht bound for a Santa Clara port. The circumstances were reported to the state department by the American envoy.

Military authorities say a contingent of 5,000 men could easily control the situation in Cuba and there are rumors that the general staff has plans in mind that contemplate the shifting of a force ranging from 5,000 to 10,000 from the Mexican border to Galveston, Tex. where they would be in striking distance of Cuba.

The navy department has the entire marine corps at Santa Domingo, only a short distance away, and in case of trouble could move a large body into Cuba at almost a moment's notice. The Atlantic fleet, now concentrated at Guantanamo, could lend valuable aid in transporting the troops..

Under the Platt amendment the United States has the right to intervene n Cuba at any time for the protection of life and property and the establishment of a stable government.

The report from American Minister Gonzales, which covers four typewritten pages, was turned over to General Scott at the urgent request of the military attache to the American legation at Havana.

ONE CONTINUOUS LAUGH.

With Good Music and No "Problems" to Worry About.

"My Aunt From Utah," with Kate Ellinore as the leading lady, will appear in Kingston Opera House this evening, regardless of what the Busy Street Liar may say to the contrary. The B. S. L. will be on the job, because the matinee this afternoon had to be omitted owing to late arrival of the company's baggage, but the show will be given tonight. There is good scenery, lively music and clean comedy that is strung on the usual almost invisible thread of story that marks the modern musical comedy. There is nothing to think about or worry over, no lesson to be taught or moral to inculcate—nothing to do but just laugh.

In Favor of Commission Plan.

A special committee recently appointed by the Taxpayers' Association to investigate the several forms of commission govenment with a view to recommending the adoption of one of the five authorized types in Poughkeepsie rendered its report to the associatios at an adjourned meeting held Monday night in the court house. The committee favors the type known commonly as the commission-manager form, and cited the workings of that type in Newburgh during the past year.

WEATHER MAN HIT IT RIGHT

Twenty Degrees Warmer Today than Tuesday—Sleighs Started Running Across the River on Tuesday When Ferry Stopped Making Trips.

The weather man at Washington, D. C., being congratulated by Kingston residents because his predictions of warmer weather has been verified, today being twenty degrees warmer than it was on Tuesday. At 6 o'clock Tuesday morning the thermometer at police headquarters registered 2 below zero and at the same time this morning it registered 18 degrees above. This thermometer always registers from 8 to 6 degrees warmer than other thermometers.

The ferry Transport was forced to discontinue trips for the season on Monday night owing to the heavy ice in the river. Tuesday morning the bus service across the river was started and a number of sleighs were running across the river all day. The charge for carrying passengers was stated to be 25 cents. The sleighs are leaving at a point near Turck's lumber mill on the Strand in Ponckhockie. This is where they started from last year. The same strenuous efforts to secure passengers for the sleighs was observed Tuesday as were carried out last year.

THE PARROT OBJECTS.

One Very Undiplomatic Member of von Bernstorff Party.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Hoboken, N. J., Feb. 14.—One member of the party of Count von Bernstorff, dismissed German ambassador, proved very undiplomatic today when the party boarded the Scandinavian-American liner which will carry them on their homeward journey. The irate member of the party was a brilliantly plumed parrot belonging to Countess von Bernstorff.

"Donnerwetter, Donnerwetter," he screamed. "Donnerwetter, Donnerwetter." The refrain was kept up continuously until the cage was taken on the vessel.

Necktie and Apron Party.

The necktie and apron party to be given Friday evening at St. Joseph's Hall, under the auspices of the Children of Mary Sodality and the promoters of the League of the Sacred Heart of St. Joseph's Church, promises to be a very enjoyable event. Two hundred and fifty invitations have been issued to the members and their friends. Maisenhelder's orchestra will furnish the music and a buffet lunch will be served. The committee in charge are the Misses Teresa Brophy, Carrie Morris, Elizabeth Hannon, Jane Madden, Sarah Humphrey, Anna Cassidy, Stella Brophy, Catherine Humphrey, Sarah Cloonan, Anastasia O'Mara, Isabelle Flanagan, Catherine Bailey and Frank Flanagan, Lou Dunn, Frank Messinger, David Freer, John McCarthy and Joseph Hurley.

MacDaniel Lecture Tonight.

Dr. MacDaniel, president of the Pennington School, will deliver a lecture at the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church this evening entitled, "Through Dixieland and Sunny Cuba." The lecturer was present at the opening of the church after the remodeling and at that time promised to deliver a lecture in the church, the profits to be turned over to the building fund. The services of Dr. MacDaniel have been donated this evening and the proceeds from the sale of tickets will go directly to the building fund. Not only is the lecture very humorous but it is also instructive and educational.

STOCK MARKET WITHOUT FEATURE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Feb. 14.—There was pressure against some stocks at the opening today. The majority of issues sold of about a point in the first fifteen minutes under small transactions. Mexican Petroleum dropped 2½ points to 87. Marine Preferred opened down a point at 68. Canadian Pacific, declined to 153⅞. Steel Common was fairly well held during the first few minutes, but later dropped ¾ to 106. The copper stocks generally showed fractional losses. The railroad issues showed a steady undertone but receded with the rest of the list. Union Pacific rose ⅛ to 138⅞, and declined to 138¼. Reading, after advancing ½ to 93, lost all this gain. Crucible Steel declined 1¼ to 64. Atlantic, Gulf and West Indies 3⅞ to 91 and substantial losses were noted in the minor steel industrials.

ANY REWARD FOR THESE DESERTERS?

Local Sleuths Anxious to Earn Honest Dollars Picking up Albany Deserters—Status of Deserters—One Picked up Tuesday.

Tuesday evening Policeman Welch picked up another Albany soldier boy who had ran away from Company C stationed at New Paltz, and locked him up in the county jail where he will await the arrival of a detail from his company to take him back to New Paltz. Dee's reason for deserting is said to have been lack of food. He is said to have stated that all he got to eat was coffee and bread. He also suffered from lack of sleep, and to keep his feet warm had to keep his boots on. The other Albany deserters, while they kicked on the coffee, seemed to lay the most stress on the fact that all they got for breakfast was bacon and eggs.

The epidemic of soldiers deserting from the Albany companies has led some of the local sleuths to prick up their ears and already inquiries are being made if any reward is offered for the apprehension of any soldier deserting. If there is a reward offered it would be wiser for the Albany soldier boys to stay out for if some of the local sleuths get after them their chances of escape are very, very slim, and bacon and eggs are much to be preferred to risking capture.

As a matter of fact it is said that the status of the men so far captured by the local police force is not that of a deserter but of a soldier who is absent without leave from his company.

CUNARD LINER REACHES NEW YORK

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Feb. 14.—More evidence was offered today that the British government has established a "safety lane" through the submarine zone when the Cunard liner Carpathia slipped into the lower bay unannounced. She left England January 26 and carried no passengers.

The French liner Espagne, carrying 100 passengers, among them being 72 Americans, and the White Star liner Lapland, with 50 passengers, 25 of them Americans, expect to sail for the other side today.

BILL FOR BARGE CANAL TERMINALS

Senator Walton Introduces Measure to Provide for Sites and Buildings in Four Hudson Valley Cities—Sum of $150,000 for Land.

(Special to The Freeman.)

Albany, Feb. 14.—Senator Walton today introduced a measure which will make possible the program of the mayors of the Hudson river cities relative to barge canal terminals there. The cities principally involved are Kingston, Newburgh, Yonkers and Poughkeepsie.

The bill follows in full;

An act providing for the construction of barge canal terminals at certain places on the Hudson river, and incidental work connected therewith, including the acquisition of property therefor, with a view of improving the commerce of the state, and making an appropriation therefor.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

Section 1.—Barge canal terminals shall be constructed at Kingston, Newburgh, Poughkeepsie and Yonkers. All work authorized by this act shall be done in accordance with plans and specifications prepared by the state engineer and surveyor and approved by the canal board. Such work shall be done by contract, and the provisions of chapter seven hundred forty-six of the laws of nineteen hundred and eleven and acts amendatory thereof, providing for the furnishing of proper terminals and facilities for barge canal traffic, in so far as they may be applicable and consistent herewith, shall apply to and govern the work authorized by this act, including the entry upon and acquisition of land needed for sites, the letting of contracts, the work thereon and payments therefor, and the disposition, use and control of such terminals when constructed. Excavations of channels, docks, slips, basins and harbors, performed under this act, shall be to such depth as will give at least thirteen feet depth of water at mean low tide.

Section 2.—To carry into effect the provisions of this act, the sum of nine hundred and fifty thousand dollars ($950,000) or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated, provided that not more than one hundred and fifty thousand dollars ($150,000) shall be expended in the acquisition of sites, and that no construction work shall be undertaken in any city until a site for the terminal therein satisfactory to the superintendent of public works and the state engineer and surveyor has been secured.

Section 3.—This act shall take effect immediately.

CHILDREN KILLED BY BRITISH BOMBS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Berlin, via Sayville Feb. 14.—British aviators dropped bombs on a children's skating party near Bruegge last Saturday, killing 16 of them, according to the semi-official Overseas News Agency, which gave out the following:

"At Bruegge on February 11 burial services were held for sixteen children killed by English flyers on the tenth. On that day crowds of children were skating on the canal in the midst of the so-called Holycross quarter of the ancient town of Bruegge. Other children with pails waited before the gates of the food kitchen for the poor in order to fetch dinner. Suddenly several English aeroplanes approached and dropped several bombs. Immmediately the ice was covered with little arms and legs.

"On Sunday, at 10:30 a. m., special mass for the dead children was said in Our Lady's Church. The services were attended by the entire population."

ADRIATIC SAFE IN LIVERPOOL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Feb. 14.—The White Star liner Adriatic, rumored several times to have been sunk in the barred zone, arrived safely at Liverpool on Monday, according to word received here today.

The Adriatic, one of the largest of the White Star's liners, carried one American passenger—G. W. Udriger of San Francisco.

The Adriatic left here on February 3, three days after the ruthless submarine warfare was commenced by Germany. She offered a rich prize to the U boats, as she carried a $10,000,000 cargo consisting of munitions and automobiles.

The route taken by the Adriatic is known only to line officials and the British admiralty. It is presumed in shipping circles that she was convoyed.

Two other big liners, both flying allied flags, and carrying munitions, are due to reach their destinations today. The Cunard liner Carmania, which left New York on February 4, is due in Liverpool and the French liner Rochambeau is due in Bordeaux.

VON BERNSTORFF SAFELY ON BOARD

Crank Claiming to be Cousin of Crown Prince Attempts to Board the Ship—Ambassador Carefully Guarded.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Hoboken, N. J., Feb. 14.—With a courtesy and marked attention seldom if ever accorded any guests of the nation, Count Johann von Bernstorff, dismissed German ambassador and his official family were escorted aboard the Scandinavian-American liner Frederick VIII today for the second stage of their long journey to Berlin. The train from Washington bearing the party reached Hoboken at 5:50, and the party transferred to the liner before 8 o'clock.

Every precautionary measure that could possibly be devised to insure safety and comfort of the departing Germans was taken by a small army of government secret service men, augmented by scores of Hoboken police and members of Collector Malone's neutrality squad.

Around the big liner played a patrol of police boats. The pier was a barred zone, through which no one could pass unless he had a card personally signed by Collector Malone.

Before Count and Countess von Bernstorff had been aboard the steamer an hour one crank attempted to board the vessel and was promptly seized by secret service operatives and locked up.

"I am a cousin of Crown Prince Wilhelm, and I have a note to be delivered to Count von Bernstorff," said the man as he pushed through the cordon of police and secret service men. "It is highly important and I must be allowed to go aboard at once. Do not detain me."

With this he started to rush to the gang plank and half a dozen police fell on him at once. The man at first refused to say who he was, but finally admitted that he was Alfred Hopkins, a salesman of 114 East 123rd street. He is believed to be demented.

In Hopkins' pocket was found a letter addresed to Count von Bernstorff. It read:

"Dear Ambassador: I await your word to consent to an interview. I am a cousin of Crown Prince Wilhelm. I seek an appearance before you to explain myself. If you will refuse to believe my life secret, then for God's sake do not refuse at least to call on me to shoulder a gun for the cause in the service and again for the cause."

It was signed "Fred Hohenzoilern" and in smaller script under that "Alfred Hopkins."

No charge was preferred against the man. He will be held until the Frederick VIII leaves her dock and then probably will be turned over to authorities for observation as to his sanity.

The train that brought the party from Washington was guarded to minute perfection. The German special section consisted of five Pullmans, which were sealed upon leaving Washington. The train did not stop after leaving the capital until it drew into Hoboken. Secret service operatives were stationed at the entrance of every car, and these were reinforced by scores of police and special guards in Hoboken.

An engine preceded the train from Washington to "test" the tracks. Thus had a bomb been placed on the right of way, it would never have reached the train.

William J. Flynn, chief of the government's secret service, himself took charge of the situation when the train arrved. The five special cars were unhitched at Jersey Junction and shunted to the Erie tracks. Then another special train preceded the section to Hoboken.

Count von Bernstorff, with the countess on his arm, appeared on the back platform shortly before 8 o'clock. The dismissed ambassador appeared to be in excellent spirits. With a good natured grin he consented to pose for the camera men.

"How are you feeling?" cried one.

"Fine," said the count.

Count von Bernstorff declined to say anything to the reporters.

"You see," he smiled, "I said everything in Washington."

With the battery of cameras going full blast, the count and countess entered an auto to go to the vessel. Chief Flynn and Captain John Henry of the secret service, entered the car with them. On either running board stood two operatives. The three blocks to the pier were lined with police and special guards.

The party boarded the vessel before 8:30 o'clock and retired immediately to the various suites allotted them.

Wurts Street Baptist Church.

All who signed cards during the evangelistic meetings expressing a preference for this church, and any others, are cordially invited to the mid-week services in the chapel on Thursday evening. It is hoped there will be a large attendance of the members and all are requested to bring the song book used in the tabernacle meetings. Opportunity will be given any to say what blessing the meetings brought them and instruction will be given those desiring to be baptised and to unite with the church. The service will commence at 7:30.

Gomez is reported to be in full control in Santa Clara and rebel forces have forced the municipal authorities to flee from Santiago City and occupied the town.

Trouble was scented by the American minister a week ago when former President Gomez left Havana on his private yacht bound for a Santa Clara port. The circumstances were reported to the state department by the American envoy.

Military authorities say a contingent of 5,000 men could easily control the situation in Cuba and there are rumors that the general staff has plans in mind that contemplate the shifting of a force ranging from 5,000 to 10,000 from the Mexican border to Galveston, Tex. where they would be in striking distance of Cuba.

The navy department has the entire marine corps at Santa Domingo, only a short distance away, and in case of trouble could move a large body into Cuba at almost a moment's notice. The Atlantic fleet, now concentrated at Guantanamo, could lend valuable aid in transporting the troops.

Under the Platt amendment the United States has the right to intervene a Cuba at any time for the protection of life and properly and the establishment of a stable government.

The report from American Minister Gonzales, which covers four typewritten pages, was turned over to General Scott at the urgent request of the military attache to the American legation at Havana.

ONE CONTINUOUS LAUGH.

With Good Music and No "Problems" to Worry About.

"My Aunt From Utah," with Kate Ellinore as the leading lady, will appear in Kingston Opera House this evening, regardless of what the Busy Street Liar may say to the contrary. The B. S. L. will be on the job, because the matinee this afternoon had to be omitted owing to late arrival of the company's baggage, but the show will be given tonight. There is good scenery, lively music and clean comedy that is strung on the usual almost invisible thread of story that marks the modern musical comedy. There is nothing to think about or worry over, no lesson to be taught or moral to inculcate—nothing to do but just laugh.

In Favor of Commission Plan.

A special committee recently appointed by the Taxpayers' Association to investigate the several forms of commission government with a view to recommending the adoption of one of the five authorized types in Poughkeepsie rendered its report to the association at an adjourned meeting held Monday night in the court house. The committee favors the type known commonly as the commission-manager form, and cited the workings of that type in Newburgh during the past year.

WEATHER MAN HIT IT RIGHT

Twenty Degrees Warmer Today than Tuesday—Sleighs Started Running Across the River on Tuesday When Ferry Stopped Making Trips.

The weather man at Washington, D. C., is being congratulated by Kingston residents because his predictions of warmer weather has been verified, today being twenty degrees warmer than it was on Tuesday. At 6 o'clock Tuesday morning the thermometer at police headquarters registered 2 below zero and at the same time this morning it registered 18 degrees above. This thermometer always registers from 8 to 6 degrees warmer than other thermometers.

The ferry Transport was forced to discontinue trips for the season on Monday night owing to the heavy ice in the river. Tuesday morning the bus service across the river was started and a number of sleighs were running across the river all day. The charge for carrying passengers was stated to be 25 cents. The sleighs are leaving at a point near Turck's lumber mill on the Strand in Ponckhockie. This is where they started from last year. The same strenuous efforts to secure passengers for the sleighs was observed Tuesday as were carried out last year.

THE PARROT OBJECTS.

One Very Undiplomatic Member of von Bernstorff Party.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Hoboken, N. J., Feb. 14.—One member of the party of Count von Bernstorff, dismissed German ambassador, proved very undiplomatic today when the party boarded the Scandinavian-American liner which will carry them on their homeward journey. The irate member of the party was a brilliantly plumed parrot belonging to Countess von Bernstorff.

"Donnerwetter, Donnerwetter," he screamed. "Donnerwetter, Donnerwetter." The refrain was kept up continuously until the cage was taken on the vessel.

Necktie and Apron Party.

The necktie and apron party to be given Friday evening at St. Joseph's Hall, under the auspices of the Children of Mary Sodality and the promoters of the League of the Sacred Heart of St. Joseph's Church, promises to be a very enjoyable event. Two hundred and fifty invitations have been issued to the members and their friends. Maisenhelder's orchestra will furnish the music and a buffet lunch will be served. The committee in charge are the Misses Teresa Brophy, Carrie Morris, Elizabeth Hannon, Jane Madden, Sarah Humphrey, Anna Cassidy, Stella Brophy, Catherine Humphrey, Sarah Cloonan, Anastasia O'Mara, Isabelle Flanagan, Catherine Bailey and Frank Flanagan, Lou Dunn, Frank Messinger, David Freer, John McCarthy and Joseph Hurley.

MacDaniel Lecture Tonight.

Dr. MacDaniel, president of the Pennington School, will deliver a lecture at the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church this evening entitled, "Through Dixieland and Sunny Cuba." The lecturer was present at the opening of the church after the remodeling and at that time promised to deliver a lecture in the church, the profits to be turned over to the building fund. The services of Dr. MacDaniel have been donated this evening and the proceeds from the sale of tickets will go directly to the building fund. Not only is the lecture very humorous but it is also instructive and educational.

STOCK MARKET WITHOUT FEATURE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Feb. 14.—There was pressure against some stocks at the opening today. The majority of issues sold off about a point in the first fifteen minutes under small transactions. Mexican Petroleum dropped 2½ points to 87. Marine Preferred opened down a point at 68. Canadian Pacific declined to 153⅝. Steel Common was fairly well held during the first few minutes, but later dropped ⅜ to 106. The copper stocks generally showed fractional losses. The railroad issues showed a steady underlone but receded with the rest of the list. Union Pacific rose ⅛ to 138⅞, and declined to 138¼. Reading, after advancing ⅜ to 93, lost all this gain. Crucible Steel declined 1¼ to 64. Atlantic, Gulf and West Indies 3⅞ to 91 and substantial losses were noted in the minor steel industrials.

ANY REWARD FOR THESE DESERTERS?

Local Sleuths Anxious to Earn Honest Dollars Picking up Albany Deserters—Status of Deserters—One Picked up Tuesday.

Tuesday evening Policeman Welch picked up another Albany soldier boy who had ran away from Company C stationed at New Paltz, and locked him up in the county jail where he will await the arrival of a detail from his company to take him back to New Paltz. Dee's reason for deserting is said to have been lack of food. He is said to have stated that all he got to eat was coffee and bread. He also suffered from lack of sleep, and to keep his feet warm had to keep his boots on. The other Albany deserters, while they kicked on the coffee, seemed to lay the most stress on the fact that all they got for breakfast was bacon and eggs.

The epidemic of soldiers deserting from the Albany companies has led some of the local sleuths to prick up their ears and already inquiries are being made if any reward is offered for the apprehension of any soldier deserting. If there is a reward offered it would be wiser for the Albany soldier boys to stay out for if some of the local sleuths get after them their chances of escape are very, very slim, and bacon and eggs are much to be preferred to risking capture.

As a matter of fact it is said that the status of the men so far captured by the local police force is not that of a deserter but of a soldier who is absent without leave from his company.

CUNARD LINER REACHES NEW YORK

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Feb. 14.—More evidence was offered today that the British government has established a "safety lane" through the submarine zone when the Cunard liner Carpathia slipped into the lower bay unannounced. She left England January 25 and carried no passengers.

The French liner Espagne, carrying 160 passengers, among them being 72 Americans, and the White Star liner Lapland, with 50 passengers, 25 of them Americans, expect to sail for the other side today.

BILL FOR BARGE CANAL TERMINALS

Senator Walton Introduces Measure to Provide for Sites and Buildings in Four Hudson Valley Cities—Sum of $150,000 for Land.

(Special to The Freeman.)

Albany, Feb. 14.—Senator Walton today introduced a measure which will make possible the program of the mayors of the Hudson river cities relative to barge canal terminals there. The cities principally involved are Kingston, Newburgh, Yonkers and Poughkeepsie.

The bill follows in full;

An act providing for the construction of barge canal terminals at certain places on the Hudson river, and incidental work connected therewith, including the acquisition of property therefor, with a view of improving the commerce of the state, and making an appropriation therefor.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

Section 1.—Barge canal terminals shall be constructed at Kingston, Newburgh, Poughkeepsie and Yonkers. All work authorized by this act shall be done in accordance with plans and specifications prepared by the state engineer and surveyor and approved by the canal board. Such work shall be done by contract, and the provisions of chapter seven hundred forty-six of the laws of nineteen hundred and eleven and acts amendatory thereof, providing for the furnishing of proper terminals and facilities for barge canal traffic, in so far as they may be applicable and consistent herewith, shall apply to and govern the work authorized by this act, including the entry upon and acquisition of land needed for sites, the letting of contracts, the work thereon and payments therefor, and the disposition, use and control of such terminals when constructed. Excavations of channels, docks, slips, basins and harbors, performed under this act, shall be to such depth as will give at least thirteen feet depth of water at mean low tide.

Section 2.—To carry into effect the provisions of this act, the sum of nine hundred and fifty thousand dollars ($950,000), or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated, provided that not more than one hundred and fifty thousand dollars ($150,000) shall be expended in the acquisition of sites, and that no construction work shall be undertaken in any city until a site for the terminal therein satisfactory to the superintendent of public works and the state engineer and surveyor has been secured.

Section 3.—This act shall take effect immediately.

CHILDREN KILLED BY BRITISH BOMBS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Berlin, via Sayville, Feb. 14.—British aviators dropped bombs on a children's skating party near Bruegge last Saturday, killing 16 of them, according to the semi-official Overseas News Agency, which gave out the following:

"At Bruegge on February 11 burial services were held for sixteen children killed by English flyers on the tenth. On that day crowds of children were skating on the canal in the midst of the so-called Holycross quarter of the ancient town of Bruegge. Other children with pails waited before the gates of the food kitchen for the poor in order to fetch dinner. Suddenly several English aeroplanes approached and dropped several bombs. Immediately the ice was covered with little arms and legs.

"On Sunday, at 10:30 a. m., special mass for the dead children was said in Our Lady's Church. The services were attended by the entire population."

ADRIATIC SAFE IN LIVERPOOL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Feb. 14.—The White Star liner Adriatic, rumored several times to have been sunk in the barred zone, arrived safely at Liverpool on Monday, according to word received here today.

The Adriatic, one of the largest of the White Star's liners, carried one American passenger—G. W. Udriger of San Francisco.

The Adriatic left here on February 3, three days after the ruthless submarine warfare was commenced by Germany. She offered a rich prize to the U boats, as she carried a $10,000,000 cargo consisting of munitions and automobiles.

The route taken by the Adriatic is known only to line officials and the British admiralty. It is presumed in shipping circles that she was convoyed.

Two other big liners, both flying allied flags, and carrying munitions, are due to reach their destinations today. The Cunard liner Carmania, which left New York on February 4, is due in Liverpool and the French liner Rochambeau is due in Bordeaux.

VON BERNSTORFF SAFELY ON BOARD

Crank Claiming to be Cousin of Crown Prince Attempts to Board the Ship—Ambassador Carefully Guarded.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Hoboken, N. J., Feb. 14.—With a courtesy and marked attention seldom if ever accorded any guests of the nation, Count Johann von Bernstorff, dismissed German ambassador and his official family were escorted aboard the Scandinavian-American liner Frederick VIII today for the second stage of their long journey to Berlin. The train from Washington bearing the party reached Hoboken at 5:50, and the party transferred to the liner before 8 o'clock.

Every precautionary measure that could possibly be devised to insure safety and comfort of the departing Germans was taken by a small army of government secret service men, augmented by scores of Hoboken police and members of Collector Malone's neutrality squad.

Around the big liner played a patrol of police boats. The pier was a barred zone, through which no one could pass unless he had a card personally signed by Collector Malone.

Before Count and Countess von Bernstorff had been aboard the steamer an hour one crank attempted to board the vessel and was promptly seized by secret service operatives and locked up.

"I am a cousin of Crown Prince Wilhelm, and I have a note to be delivered to Count von Bernstorff," said the man as he pushed through the cordon of police and secret service men. "It is highly important and I must be allowed to go aboard at once. Do not detain me."

With this he started to rush to the gang plank and half a dozen police fell on him at once. The man at first refused to say who he was, but finally admitted that he was Alfred Hopkins, a salesman of 114 East 123rd street. He is believed to be demented.

In Hopkins' pocket was found a letter addressed to Count von Bernstorff. It read:

"Dear Ambassador: I await your word to consent to an interview. I am a cousin of Crown Prince Wilhelm. I seek an appearance before you to explain myself. If you will refuse to believe my life secret, then for God's sake do not refuse at least to call on me to shoulder a gun for the cause in the service and again for the cause."

It was signed "Fred Hohenzollern" and in smaller script under that "Alfred Hopkins."

No charge was preferred against the man. He will be held until the Frederick VIII leaves her dock and then probably will be turned over to authorities for observation as to his sanity.

The train that brought the party from Washington was guarded to minute perfection. The German special section consisted of five Pullmans, which were sealed upon leaving Washington. The train did not stop after leaving the capital until it drew into Hoboken. Secret service operatives were stationed at the entrance of every car, and these were reinforced by scores of police and special guards in Hoboken.

An engine preceded the train from Washington to "test" the tracks. Thus had a bomb been placed on the right of way, it would never have reached the train.

William J. Flynn, chief of the government's secret service, himself took charge of the situation when the train arrved. The five special cars were unhitched at Jersey Junction and shunted to the Erie tracks. Then another special train preceded the section to Hoboken.

Count von Bernstorff, with the countess on his arm, appeared on the back platform shortly before 8 o'clock. The dismissed ambassador appeared to be in excellent spirits. With a good natured grin he consented to pose for the camera men.

"How are you feeling?" cried one.

"Fine," said the count.

Count von Bernstorff declined to say anything to the reporters.

"You see," he smiled, "I said everything in Washington."

With the battery of cameras going full blast, the count and countess entered an auto to go to the vessel. Chief Flynn and Captain John Henry of the secret service, entered the car with them. On either running board stood two operatives. The three blocks to the pier were lined with police and special guards.

The party boarded the vessel before 8:30 o'clock and retired immediately to the various suites allotted them.

WHAT FARMERS WANT FROM FARM BUREAUS

Ithaca, Feb. 14.—There are three tasks to which the farm bureaus must devote themselves, in the opinion of S. L. Strivings, president of the Wyoming county farm bureau, who spoke here today before a farmers' week meeting at the college of agriculture. The farm bureau must act as a leader in all agricultural activities of the community; must serve as a clearing house for gathering and disseminating agricultural knowledge; and must foster the spirit of community progress.

According to Mr. Strivings, the farm bureau must lead the way towards progress and efficiency through co-operation—"they can be heralds in summoning the best in the country to its self betterment." Some of the movements in which the farm bureau may play an important part are education, community betterment, religious education, rural health, efficiency in community work, and rural conservation along many lines.

As a clearing house for agricultural knowledge Mr. Strivings thinks that the farm bureau can make use of the "experiment stations" near at hand—the experiment fields of men who have made good in their community as farmers. He pointed out that many improvements upon agricultural machinery were made by the men who used the original machines. The farm bureau should collect and use the highly valuable experience which often lies within reach of its office—the experience of successful poultry men, dairymen, fruit growers and men who are making money on their crops.

As a part of the machinery of university extension the farm bureau can give direct help to its community. To keep before the farmers of its community the progress strong minds are making in agricultural science, and in all those activities engaging men and women of the country. "Certainly," says Mr. Strivings, "the farm bureau can keep alive a propaganda of rural education toward ideals which can not be hoped for as an immediate attainment."

CLINTONDALE.

Clintondale, Feb. 14.—The four act drama, "Cranberry Corners," given in the Grange Hall of Clintondale, by the Sunshine Beams of the M. E. Church on Friday and Saturday evening last, was a decided success. The financial yield was $71 clear, and judging by the crowded house on the second night, and the ever ready applause and the after pleasing comments, it was also a success as an amateur performance. As a result of the appreciative reception given the performance by the folks of Clintondale, it has been decided to give the play in Gardiner, at Callahan's Hall, Tuesday evening, February 20, at 8 o'clock. All proceeds from the play are for a piano fund of the M. E. Church.

TABERNACLE'S FATE STILL UNSETTLED

Some Talk of Forming a Stock Company to Retain Structure—Question Left to Committee to Report Later.

What will be done with the Delaware Avenue Tabernacle is still unsettled but those who attended the meeting at the tabernacle on Tuesday evening were of the opinion that the building should be retained and not torn down, as was shown when the Rev. A. K. Fuller of the Wurts Street Baptist Church offered a resolution that it was the sense of the meeting to retain the building if all arrangements such as leasing the land and meeting the requirements of the fire board, etc., could be met. The resolution was carried by a rising vote.

The building cost $3,500 to erect, and the tabernacle committee in appraising it valued it at $1,000. It was stated, however, that if the building was sold it would take more than that to purchase it.

There seemed to be an impression among those interested at the meeting that it would be a good idea if possible to form a stock company to retain the building and lease it for various educational exhibits, religious and mass meetings, etc. None were in favor of using the building as a movie theater.

The question of whether the tabernacle shall be torn down or retained will depend entirely upon what kind of a report the committee appointed makes at the meeting to be held next Tuesday evening. At that time the committee will report on what terms the land on which the tabernacle stands can be leased and for how long a period of time, and what the fire board would require done to the structure if allowed to stand. These were the most important questions and if the ground could not be secured at a reasonable rent those in favor of forming the stock company to retain the building were in favor of tearing down the tabernacle and selling the lumber.

The tabernacle committee consists of A. S. Hammond, Harry Flemming and Dwight McEntee, and Tuesday evening the following additional members were added: S. E. Eighmey, F. R. Powley, Samuel Watts and Harry Watts.

This committee was instructed to report at the next meeting so that the question may be definitely settled.

SAVORY DISHES.

Any roast meat, especially lamb or mutton, is improved by inserting small slices of a clove of garlic in the meat, and remove them before the roast is served, so that any member of the family who has unreasonable prejudice against garlic will not need to be disturbed. A slight flavor of garlic in many dishes will greatly improve the the flavor, and if it is not overdone will not offend the most fastidious.

Onion Soup.—To four good-sized onions chopped very fine, add two thin slices of bacon, cut in small bits. Let this cook until the onions are soft and the bacon brown. Add two cupfuls of cold water and let it come to a boil. Mash the onion with a large spoon; do not pour off the water, but add one and a half cupfuls of rich milk; season well with salt and pepper and a tablespoonful of butter. When eggs are plentiful beat up an egg and pour the soup over it just at the time of serving. Flour and butter cooked together, using a tablespoonful of each, will make a sufficient binding. Serve without straining.

Fried Apples.—Core nice firm apples, cut them into slices, half an inch thick, dust lightly with sugar and cinnamon, roll them in flour and cook in a little hot suet; when brown on one side, turn on the other. Dish with the slices overlapping and serve with chops.

Consome Royal.—Take a knuckle of veal and three pounds of a shin of beef; cut the meat from the bones, crack the bones. Put two tablespoonfuls of sugar and one sliced onion, over the fire, cook until brown; add the bones, meat and six quarts of water; cook at a simmering temperature for three hours, then add one carrot, one turnip, one onion, half a cupful of celery tops, all chopped; six cloves, two bay leaves and a bit of red pepper. Cook one hour longer, and strain.

Huntington Salad.—Cut pared apples into balls with a French vegetable cutter, lay them in a French dressing to season. Just before serving roll in salad dressing and chopped nuts and with a toothpick insert a small strip of green pepper or a stem of parsley for a stem in each.

PREPARING TO ARM MERCHANT SHIPS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Feb. 14.—The United States navy today is busily engaged in completing arrangements for the arming of American merchant vessels preparatory to the immediate resumption of trans-Atlantic commerce in defiance of Germany's threat that such vessels will be sunk.

A high official of the navy department pointed to the fact that there was now stored sufficient guns, ranging in calibre from one-pounds to six-inch rifles completely to equip 200 merchant vessels as armed cruisers and that many of the vessels listed in the merchant marine, including the St. Louis and St. Paul of the American Line were constructed with the view of being armed.

It was further pointed out that these guns could either be loaned or could be condemned and sold to the companies desiring them without any further action by congress and that this would be the course followed by the department.

Vessels of the St. Louis type will be the first to be armed and this work will be completed within five days.

Already numerous applications from honorably discharged gunners from the navy have been received directly by the American Line offices in New York and through the navy department, indicating that there will be sufficient personnel for the manning of the guns.

VILLA "RAID" MAY BE A MYTH

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Columbus, N. M., Feb. 14.—Reports to government agents this afternoon said there was little foundation for reports of a raid by Villista bandits on the "Corner Ranch" southwest of Hachita, N. M.

Government agent Morehead wired that Mexican families broke the international fence and moved away with their belongings. Lem Spillsbury, Mormon scout, formerly with the Pershing forces, sent three men to report on the direction taken by the Mexicans. They have not returned and their absence has given rise to rumors that they were killed or carried off by the Mexicans. John A. Cord, Albert Jenson and Andrew Peterson are the missing men.

Cavalrymen scoured the Hachita region but reported everything quiet.

MRS CHAS. VAN RENSSELAER STARTS FUND TO PURCHASE WAR BALLOONS.

Mrs. Charles A. Van Rensselaer.

New York, Feb. 14.—Mrs. Charles A. Van Rensselaer, who is perhaps the most enthusiastic woman advocate of aerial defence, has started a fund to purchase for the government the military observation balloon exhibited at the show of the First Pan-American Aeronautic Exposition.

The amount which it is proposed to raise is $10,000, which she expects to secure by popular subscription among her friends, each to contribute $250 until the desired sum is secured.

Chacha Feared Roosevelt.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Feb. 14.—Someone spread the report in Santo Domingo that T. Roosevelt and his rough riders had started for the unruly little republic. A few minutes later Chacha, the most bloodthirsty of the bandit leaders, of the island, was on his way to surrender to the American marines. He is now a prisoner. The rumor originated through the visit to the island of Franklin D. Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy, he revealed today.

Fire—But Not Dangerous.

A pedestrian passing a vacant house at 136 Smith avenue, Tuesday afternoon, saw fire in the house and running to the nearest fire box—No. 111—turned in an alarm. When the fire companies responded and found that a plumber was at work thawing out the water pipes and the pedestrian had seen the flare of the plumber's torch.

Fought Fire Below Zero.

With the thermometer at 18 degrees below zero, Poughkeepsie firemen were called to extinguish four fires Tuesday morning. The Grand Rapids furniture store and three residences were damaged to the extent of $22,000. Many firemen suffered from frozen hands and ears.

HOW TO ECONOMIZE IN THE USE OF COAL.

—If the consumer is not getting his money's worth—and probably he is not—says the anthracite bureau of information, the fault may be with the stove or furnace, the kind of fuel used or the method of regulation. Here are some of the don'ts picked from a pamphlet issued by the bureau:

Don't put in too much coal or too little. Don't crowd it above the top of the fire brick lining in range, cylinder stove or hot air furnace. Fill the fuel space twice a day in winter weather, heaping the coal slightly in the center.

Don't add small quantities of coal several times a day, with attendant shakings; that means loss in economy and comfort. Shake the grate only twice a day before fresh coal is put in, and stop when a bright light shows underneath.

Don't leave the feed door open; it cools the heating surfaces. All checking of draft should be accomplished by shutting the ash pit door and opening the check damper in the stovepipe.

Don't neglect the furnace in mild weather. See that the coal is properly consumed and not shaken through the grate to pass out with the ashes. Keep the ash pit empty. Don't let the ashes bank up under the grate; it not only shuts out air needed for combustion, but tends to warp the grate bars. Remove the ashes regularly once a day, even if only a small amount has fallen.

Don't use the wrong size of coal. Ordinary domestic ranges require "chestnut;" larger sizes can use "stove" coal, but "chestnut" will give satisfaction. Fairly large steam and hot water boilers are best operated with "egg size" anthracite; larger sizes use "stove" alone or mixed with "chestnut." Hot air furnaces of all sizes generally in use should be fed with "egg."

If the right size and quality of coal is used no ash sifter is required. The coal should burn to a fine ash, and its first trip through the stove or furnace should be its last. Clinkers are usually a sign of improper use of the poker or improper regulation of drafts. Too hot a fire produces clinkers.

Dry air is a poor conductor of heat and is also bad for the health. Keep the air in the house reasonably moist. This can be done by placing an open vessel of water on or near each radiator. All hot air furnaces and modern base burner stoves have receptacles for this purpose. They should be refilled every time the fire is replenished.

PIN MONEY.

How a Quaint Explanation of It Became Current.

The term "pin money" dates back to the seventeenth century, when the modern pin was invented. After that time the maker was allowed to sell them openly only on Jan. 1 and 2, so that court ladies and fashionable dames alike were compelled to buy a large quantity to last them over the year. So extremely important was this yearly purchase that husbands gave their wives large sums of money for the pins. By and by pins became cheaper and cheaper, and women spent their allowance on other vanities, but the term "pin money" remained in use for all "spending" money.

The expression "salt money" is another such. This dates very far back when the Roman workers in the salt mines were paid in salt. The salt they got in return for their labors was called in Latin "salarium," or salt allowance. The word salarium later on was applied to the fees men got for odd jobs. For instance, the Roman noble would say, "For patching my toga I will give the fellow a slight salarium—a bit of money to buy salt with." Finally salarium came to mean wages, salary, what it does today. When we say "a man is not worth his salt" we mean that he is not worth his salary or wages.

How to Rid Cats and Dogs of the Pest of Fleas.

Attention has been called to the fact that care must be taken in using tar camphor on dogs to rid them of fleas, not to let them lick their fur before the tar camphor has been brushed off. Tar camphor never should be used on cats, for they naturally lick their fur to keep it smooth, and in this way the camphor will get into the alimentary canal and poison the animal. A valuable cat treated with the camphor had to be killed to put it out of its agony. But in the case of dogs this danger is slight.

How to Keep Roses Fresh In the House.

Cut flowers, especially roses, will stay fresh longer if they are kept in salt water. To get the best results a small piece of the stem should be cut off each day. The stem should then be slit about half an inch and salt put in the slit. Fresh water should be put in the vase each day. Great care should be taken not to drop water in the roses themselves, as it will turn them dark.

THE FAIR CRITIC

Homes Are Built to Please the Architect, Not the Housewife.

WHAT ONE WOMAN THINKS.

Sinks Hung Too Low, Coal Bins Near the Laundry Tubs Instead of the Furnace and Doors That Open the Wrong Way Are Breaking Up Homes.

Criticising the architect's plan of most modern houses, one woman says:

"The stove is in a corner—lovely situation!—and right beside the window, so that one either goes without air or has the gas blow out every other minute.

"The sink, which is about six inches too low, is also in a corner, with only one draining board, so that after wiping a dish one has to turn completely around to place it on a table behind. Also, if one wants a combination spigot one pays to have it put in, because I have yet to see a sink that was fitted.

"Why are we afflicted with the beautiful green tiled spaces in the wall under the mantelpieces? I do not care for mantelpieces anyway, and I certainly do not admire the sheet of metal in bronze effect that is supposed to conceal the fireplace that isn't there.

"Why are the washtubs within six feet of the furnace, so that every time one shakes the furnace or puts on a spoonful of coal the clothes are dusted? In this connection why is there no allowance for a coal bin somewhere near the furnace? My bin is at the other end of the cellar, and although I may start from the bin with a shovel of coal I arrive at the furnace with three lumps.

"My gas hot water heater is in the cellar to be near the laundry tubs instead of the kitchen, although I wash dishes three times a day and clothes only once a week.

"I have lovely glass chandeliers for electric lights, but there is no provision for gas in the dining room, living room and front hall, so that when the electricity fails I retire to the kitchen.

"The light in my pantry is so high that I have to climb on a chair to light it. I do not recommend climbing with a baby in one arm.

"Fortunately I have no thresholds downstairs, but upstairs these relics still interrupt me every time I try to make a 'clean sweep.'

"A spigot is placed at the water entrance to the house to enable one to cut off the water, but there is no way to cut it off only upstairs. So that when one has anything fixed upstairs in the bathroom the cook in the kitchen and the laundress in the cellar are left without a drop of water. It should be only a matter of a couple of stopcocks.

"Doors that open the wrong way are ever present. Hospitals have round corners—why not houses? Why is the best place in the room always selected for the radiator?

"My stairs are so situated that one climbs over the hall radiator to get there, and the possibility of a hall rack is absolutely ignored—mine is in the dining room—also they are beautifully wainscoted part of the way down, so that the baby has no banister to hold to for several feet and usually falls that distance.

"It is one reason why so many women after giving up in despair trying to keep domestics in houses go to housekeeping in apartments and then, finding the last state worse than the first, give up wrestling with the domestic labor problem altogether and go to living in hotels. Saving in house planning involves the very saving of the home itself."

Sweaters For the South.

Sweaters that go over the head and are cut in two straight pieces caught at the wrist, without collar or sleeves, are exploited for the season in the south. These sweaters are of gaudy, rough surfaced woolens. They are primitive in outline and material. It is suggested that the American Navajo blanket be used for these sweaters, and if it is done it will create a colorful sensation.

FARM POULTRY

START IN POULTRY BUSINESS

Spring Is Good Time to Begin—Either Obtain Breeding Pen or File Order for Eggs.

Spring is a good time to start in the poultry business. Either obtain a good breeding pen from someone who is reliable and who raises the breed you fancy, or else send for eggs. You do not have much time to obtain breeding pens, for most breeders of purebred stock have their pens mated by this time and without doubt will have disposed of their surplus choice breeding males by advertising them last fall and selling them to parties wanting good breeders.

The other plan, then, is to send to these breeders and obtain their price lists at once. Even if you do not care to have the eggs for a month or so, send now and obtain the price lists and get your order booked, for others are doing the same thing, and most breeders send out eggs in the order booked. Delays oftentimes cost much, due to inability of the shipper to fill his many orders as promptly as he may desire.

BEGIN FIGHT ON PARASITES

Poor Policy to Wait Until Spring When Insects Become Numerous—Dust Birds Thoroughly.

A common practice among poultry men is to wait in the spring until lice and other parasites have become so numerous that they will be noticeable. By far the better plan is to begin the fight early and keep them from getting a start.

One of the best means of doing this is to dust the birds thoroughly with a good insect powder, at regular intervals, beginning in late winter. There is no harm in giving the hens an application occasionally even in midwinter since they are never entirely free from lice, and everyone of these pests killed before the breeding season may mean a million or two less to fight next summer.

ROOSTER TO IMPROVE FLOCK

In Selecting Young Fowls Use Best Judgment—Certain Characteristics May Be Noted.

The kind of cockerels used is far more important than most farmer-poultry raisers believe. The fact that one bird looks well and is healthy and active is a good indication of a good bird. But this is not enough. The male bird should be of such good breeding that he will improve the flock. If he is not capable of doing this he is not worthy of his place as head of the flock.

When you are selecting the male birds from the young cockerels of your own flock you should use your best judgement and find the best individuals. In this case you must be influenced by the appearance of the birds, as for the most part the cockerels will be about the same in breeding unless you have trap-nested and kept records on the hens.

It is rather hard to select young cockerels, as they may often deceive one when they are quite young. Like a calf, a colt, or a pig, there is much speculation in selecting for breeding purposes. Nevertheless, there are certain characteristics that may be noted. From these a careful breeder will determine the male birds for his flock.

CHICKENS KEPT IN BROODERS

Much Loss Can Be Avoided by Keeping Everything Clean—Use Cut Straw for Litter.

Much of the loss in raising chicks in brooders can be obviated by keeping the floor of brooders and brooder houses covered with an inch of clean sand.

Cut corn stover or cut straw may be used on the sand for scratch litter. Such material as clover or timothy chaff or buckwheat hulls are objectionable in the brooder house. The chicks pick up the particles of the fuzzy stuff and are not able to pass them through the crop.

The young chicks need a daily feeding of fine-cut green grass if they are to do well.

DON'T BE PERSONAL.

The Crudity and the Cruelty of Being Plain Spoken.

Among the immediate members of our families, our nearest and dearest, there frequently prevails a form of affectionate personal service that is irksome and trying, yet cannot be avoided or rebuked without giving offense. There are mothers who harass independent and sensible daughters with silly little admonitions about wearing rubbers and getting home early; who bemoan continually in public their daughters' predilection for tennis and dislike for fine sewing; who never find it possible to understand why their daughters have views or feelings that differ from their own, says the Woman's Home Companion. And, likewise, we find daughters who adopt the maternal attitude to their mothers and exercise a censorship over their clothes, occupations and recreations in a fashion truly exasperating. It makes the onlooker want to shout violently at these types, "Let each other alone." Even though these attentions are actuated by the fondest love they are an infringement on individual rights. Mother should let daughter play tennis, and daughter should not try to select mother's hats. The result would be a great gain in family peace.

There ought to be a special chapter on "Being Impersonal" in every book of etiquette, and, since books of etiquette are usually consulted only by those who may want to know how many cards to leave on twin sisters or what is the time limit on dinner calls, perhaps this special chapter ought to be included in travel stories—yea, even works of fiction—so that every one who reads may see it. It should consist first of advice on how to be impersonal, with helpful hints, such as: "If your friend looks tired don't tell her so, but do something definite to help her rest." "Never condole with any one on being either married or unmarried. Both may be fortunate states." "Never criticise any piece of clothing worn by any one, not even awning stripes on a fat woman or an elbow sleeve on a skinny one." "Never remark on any family likeness. It's bad enough to have it without being told about it."

Boil the raisins half an hour, let the water boil away, slip out the seeds and add the pulp to the pumpkin. Scald the milk and mix with the pumpkin, add the seasoning, molasses and egg last. Bake in a plate lined and rimmed with crust.

Long Chains Worn.

Long chains of various sorts are in fashion this winter. The woman who seeks individuality nowadays outnumbers the woman who merely follows the fashion—which means that most women try to find something just a little different in the detail of their dress than that of their friend and neighbor. So it is that there are a dozen and one different sorts of long chains to be found, each as interesting as the one before it.

Breaking on the Wheel.

In medieval days "breaking on the wheel," a most barbarous mode of inflicting capital punishment was often used in France and Germany. It consisted of stretching the victim upon a wheel or upon a wooden frame in the shape of St. Andrew's cross and then breaking his limbs by blows from iron bars. The sufferer was then left to die slowly from fear, thirst and exhaustion.

"Just Livin' Along."

Frank L. Stanton of the Atlanta Constitution is one of the best known newspaper men in America. Likewise he is one of America's sweetest poets. One of his dainty lyrics is entitled "Just Livin' Along." It is a song of optimism. It embodies a philosophy which might be adopted with profit by all men and women.

Let us be thankful that we're just livin' along.

Life, joyous, jubilant, vital, and thrilling, is all about us. Birds, beasts, plants and flowers live and love and pass to the great change.

Indeed, is there anything other or greater than life in its myriad manifestations? It doesn't much matter how we designate the forms and aspects of being. Let us be thankful that we're just livin' along. We shall continue to live. All our worries and frettings will not affect that fact, though they may hurry us to other conditions, hurry us more swiftly to a new plane of existence.

But let us join in the song of the optimist and be happy forever that we are just livin' along.—Dayton Herald.

Good Journalism.

There are many stories of the journalistic genius of the blind Joseph Pulitzer. One cropped up the other day.

"There was a big championship golf tournament to be played," a golfer said. "This was years ago, before Mr. Pulitzer went blind. Golf at that time was in its infancy in this country.

"Well, Mr. Pulitzer sent for his dozen best reporters and special writers and, lining them up before him, said:

"'Those who understand golf stand on the left; those who are ignorant of it, on the right.'

"The stars separated themselves accordingly. All understood golf but three—three very excellent writers.

"'You three chaps will cover the tournament,' said Mr. Pulitzer, with his nervous smile. 'I want all our readers to enjoy our story of this event, and, since most of them are ignorant of golf, what interests you three will be sure to interest them.'"—Washington Star.

School Strikes In Japan.

School strikes seem peculiar to Japan, and invariably one is under way. Such a strike is a calamity dreaded by head master and undermaster alike. A head master who has had a strike in his school is under suspicion, even though he may be quite innocent of any unjust conduct, and eventually he must seek a new field for his activities, so unpleasant do the students make his continued stay. When students combine against one of the undermasters he has nothing to do but tender his resignation. If the strike is temporarily calmed down it is tacitly understood that the master in question is on the lookout for a new place. Sometimes strikes take place for the retention of the teacher rather than for his dismissal. In this latter case it is always the head master who suffers the most, as the move is directed against him for not retaining some favorite.

Heavy Money.

How to keep your money safe from thieves is a problem that was solved by the inhabitants of Uap, in the Caroline islands, when they devised a currency too heavy for burglars to carry away. The money used by the natives is in the form of huge wheels of stone, weighing as much as 500 pounds and roughly shaped in the form of a grindstone. A large hole in the center is a feature of the Uap money. Even the clam shell pennies are perforated. The stones are used for large purchases only. If an islander becomes wealthy enough to purchase a pig he must part with a 500 pound circular stone, but if he is required to deliver it for any distance the pork is well earned.—American Boy.

WHAT FARMERS WANT FROM FARM BUREAUS

Ithaca, Feb. 14.—There are three tasks to which the farm bureaus must devote themselves, in the opinion of S. L. Strivings, president of the Wyoming county farm bureau, who spoke here today before a farmers' week meeting at the college of agriculture. The farm bureau must act as a leader in all agricultural activities of the community; must serve as a clearing house for gathering and disseminating agricultural knowledge; and must foster the spirit of community progress.

According to Mr. Strivings, the farm bureau must lead the way towards progress and efficiency through co-operation—"they can be heralds in summoning the best in the country to its self betterment." Some of the movements in which the farm bureau may play an important part are education, community betterment, religious education, rural health, efficiency in community work, and rural conservation along many lines.

As a clearing house for agricultural knowledge Mr. Strivings thinks that the farm bureau can make use of the "experiment stations" near at hand—the experiment fields of men who have made good in their community as farmers. He pointed out that many improvements upon agricultural machinery were made by the men who used the original machines. The farm bureau should collect and use the highly valuable experience which often lies within reach of its office—the experience of successful poultry men, dairymen, fruit growers and men who are making money on their crops.

As a part of the machinery of university extension the farm bureau can give direct help to its community. To keep before the farmers of its community the progress strong minds are making in agricultural science, and in all those activities engaging men and women of the country. "Certainly," says Mr. Strivings, "the farm bureau can keep alive a propaganda of rural education toward ideals which can not be hoped for as an immediate attainment."

As a result of the appreciative reception given the performance by the folks of Clintondale, it has been decided to give the play in Gardiner, at Callahan's Hall, Tuesday evening, February 20, at 8 o'clock. Perseverance.

Is there any gift greater than the capacity for steady, patient, unselfish work, sweet-spirited perseverance in the face of needless hindrances and varying opposition? Sweet reasonableness, which does not insist upon its own way, but bravely determines that in some way the work will go forward, is a rare and precious gift.

TABERNACLE'S FATE STILL UNSETTLED

Some Talk of Forming a Stock Company to Retain Structure—Question Left to Committee to Report Later.

What will be done with the Delaware Avenue Tabernacle is still unsettled but those who attended the meeting at the tabernacle on Tuesday evening were of the opinion that the building should be retained and not torn down, as was shown when the Rev. A. K. Fuller of the Wurts Street Baptist Church offered a resolution that it was the sense of the meeting to retain the building if all arrangements such as leasing the land and meeting the requirements of the fire board, etc., could be met. The resolution was carried by a rising vote.

The building cost $3,500 to erect, and the tabernacle committee in appraising it valued it at $1,000. It was stated, however, that if the building was sold it would take more than that to purchase it.

There seemed to be an impression among those interested at the meeting that it would be a good idea if possible to form a stock company to retain the building and lease it for various educational exhibits, religious and mass meetings, etc. None were in favor of using the building as a movie theater.

The question of whether the tabernacle shall be torn down or retained will depend entirely upon what kind of a report the committee appointed makes at the meeting to be held next Tuesday evening. At that time the committee will report on what terms the land on which the tabernacle stands can be leased and for how long a period of time, and what the fire board would require done to the structure if allowed to stand. These were the most important questions and if the ground could not be secured at a reasonable rent those in favor of forming the stock company to retain the building were in favor of tearing down the tabernacle and selling the lumber.

The tabernacle committee consists of A. S. Hammond, Harry Flemming and Dwight McEntee, and Tuesday evening the following additional members were added: S. E. Eighmey, F. R. Fowler, Samuel Watts and Harry Watts.

This committee was instructed to report at the next meeting so that the question may be definitely settled.

Heaven not grim but fair of hue.
Do I stoop? I pluck a posy.
Do I stand and stare? All's blue.

SAVORY DISHES.

Any roast meat, especially lamb or mutton, is improved by inserting small slices of a clove of garlic in the meat, and remove them before the roast is served, so that any member of the family who has unreasonable prejudice against garlic will not need to be disturbed. A slight flavor of garlic in many dishes will greatly improve the the flavor, and if it is not overdone will not offend the most fastidious.

Onion Soup.—To four good-sized onions chopped very fine, add two thin slices of bacon, cut in small bits. Let this cook until the onions are soft and the bacon brown. Add two cupfuls of cold water and let it come to a boil. Mash the onion with a large spoon; do not pour off the water, but add one and a half cupfuls of rich milk; season well with salt and pepper and a tablespoonful of butter. When eggs are plentiful beat up an egg and pour the soup over it just at the time of serving. Flour and butter cooked together, using a tablespoonful of each, will make a sufficient binding. Serve without straining.

Fried Apples.—Core nice firm apples, cut them into slices, half an inch thick, dust lightly with sugar and cinnamon, roll them in flour and cook in a little hot suet; when brown on one side, turn on the other. Dish with the slices overlapping and serve with chops.

Conserve Royal.—Take a knuckle of veal and three pounds of a shin of beef; cut the meat from the bones, crack the bones. Put two tablespoonfuls of sugar and one sliced onion, over the fire, cook until brown; add the bones, meat and six quarts of water; cook at a simmering temperature for three hours, then add one carrot, one turnip, one onion, half a cupful of celery tops, all chopped; six cloves, two bay leaves and a bit of red pepper. Cook one hour longer, and strain.

Huntington Salad.—Cut pared apples into balls with a French vegetable cutter, lay them in a French dressing to season. Just before serving roll in salad dressing and chopped nuts and, with a toothpick insert a small strip of green pepper or a stem of parsley for a stem in each.

KINGSTON, N. Y., FEB. 14, 1917.

A pamphlet is being widely circulated in Germany, according to the Socialist Volksrecht of Zurich, which points to the deposition of the Hohenzollerns from power as the only means for the Fatherland to escape destruction. The present situation in Germany is compared to that in France in 1814 and 1815, and the writer of the article asks if the Kaiser will save Germany by abdication as Napoleon saved France. Victory for Germany is pronounced impossible and only a change of dynasty can mitigate the conditions of defeat. Among the other interesting suggestions of this pamphleteer is the substitution of Wittelsbach (the house of Bavaria) for Hohenzollern as a guarantee of peace and as offering a prospect of a greater Germany despite defeat. The Zurich newspaper pronounces this opinion as widely held throughout South Germany, where the peace-loving Bavarians are in the majority. It is not strange that it should be making headway in the face of popular dismay that the successes announced for the German arms are not followed by general peace overtures—victories without peace rather than "peace without victory." The German people cannot now be entertaining hope of any greater successes in the East nor can they believe in victory in the West. The opinion now current in the strongholds of Kultur seems to be that if Germany can maintain her present military positions, she can win the war under water. It is the last desperate stroke for supremacy in the war of nations.

The detention of ex-Ambassador Gerard at Berlin excites curiosity as to what would have been done with him or to him if the allies had refused safe conduct to ex-Ambassador Bernstorff. Precedents are hard to find unless we go back a century or two in the history of Turkey and other countries of about the same level. The only modern precedents among civilized powers are furnished by Germany herself, the British embassy in Berlin having been attacked by a mob in August, 1914, and indignities having been at the same time heaped upon the French Ambassador who was required to pay 5,000 francs (afterwards refunded) before he was allowed to leave the country. Possibly all this explains the anxiety at Berlin for Count von Bernstorff, who at all times has been as safe among us as President Wilson himself.

The director of the experimental school at a teachers' college wants "to find out why it is that parents now say that their children come out of school without knowing anything, and to overcome this criticism with a better training." Perhaps so many young people come from college "without knowing anything" because they go there with no other object in view than to have a good time and misdirect their energies accordingly.

More than one billion dollars in gross earnings have been lost by the railroads in this country during the last decade through car idleness. Against this, the loss within the same period from car shortages is a little less than $79,000,000. These informing figures are made public by the American Railway Association. They throw an interesting light on a railroad problem of which the public hears little except where the shipper's ox is gored by a scarcity of cars. For instance, from November, 1913, to last March there was a surplus of freight cars, approximating from 136,000 to more than 200,000, which figure was recorded in October, 1914. Then, after the lean years, came the enormous impetus to our foreign trade due to the war, in which the railroads were called upon to perform, in many instances, a service 40 per cent in excess of the preceding year. The tremendous increases in freight-carrying facilities by the railroads in enlarged cars and terminal improvements cleared tracks in some measure but failed to release equipment and left the shortage as bad as ever. It is a big problem for the railroads to face. It is the same thing that the farmer or small manufacturer goes up against in the scarcity of labor at certain periods of the year and a surplus at others. Co-operation on the part of the shippers is one needful thing, as this would mean prompt loading and unloading of freight cars. The increase in the demurrage charges, made recently, should be an effective factor to this end. Meanwhile, the railroads are making no mistake in acquainting the public with the embarrassment of riches arising from the tremendous increase in freight shipments.

A Valentine Return

By SADIE OLCOTT

"What's the use of spending money for valentines with an array like this already at hand to cost nothing but a stamp?"

The words were spoken by Jimmy Emerson on the 13th day of February. He had gone to a box in his closet and taken out a bundle of valentines he had received the year before and was trying to remember from whom they had come.

"This one is a daisy. This bay window built out from the main part is a peach. If there's no mark on it I'm going to take the risk of using it."

He examined the valentine with a hand magnifying glass and, not finding any mark on it, laid it aside to send to his best girl. Then he selected another to send to his next best girl and in this way made use of not less than a dozen valentines.

On the valentine he sent to his best girl, Helen Strong, he wrote a couplet indicating that he was pining for an expression of her love, which, if received, he would treasure forever. "Forever" was the last word of the second line and rimed with "sever," the last word of the first line. He didn't disguise his handwriting, for he was proud of his couplet and didn't wish it or the beautiful valentine to go to waste.

Jimmy addressed, stamped and mailed his valentines early in the afternoon of the 13th of February. The next morning the postman brought him a batch of valentines. The first one he opened he recognized as one he had sent out himself the day before. There was an indorsement on it as follows:

My love for you is just as warm as when I sent you this just one year ago.

The blood mounted to Jim's cheek at being detected in using an old valentine.

"Better luck next time," and he opened another.

The luck was certainly better, for he had never seen the inclosure before. The third and the fourth were also new to him. On the fifth, which was one he had sent, was an indorsement:

What did you send it back for? I don't want it.

Jim had grown somewhat callous by this time, but the truth is he was looking for his valentine from Helen Strong. Beside hers the rest were of very little importance. However, he opened them all without coming upon one that bore any trace whatever of having been sent by her.

"I'll get it by the next mail," he muttered and tossed those he had received on to a table from which they were destined later on to be brushed into a waste paper basket. During the day he lounged about the house, and whenever he heard the postman's whistle he went to the door himself in eager expectancy of his valentine from Helen. But no valentine came. In the evening he called up on the telephone:

"Is that you, Helen?

"I'm Jim.

"Got anything on hand this evening?

"Well, I'll run in for a little while.

"Did you get many valentines today?

"I sent you one. It was a beauty; cost $2.50.

"Yes, mine was the one with the couplet.

"I'm glad you liked 'em.

"Yes, I flatter myself that protruding—what d'ye call it?—is very pretty.

"I didn't write anything under the Cupid.

"Can't you tell me what it was on the phone?

"Well, I'll be over in a few minutes."

When Jimmy arrived he found Helen sitting by a table in her own private parlor with a stack of valentines beside her. Before she would answer any questions she insisted upon showing her love missives. Jim took no interest in those that had been sent by any one except himself, but Helen forced him to look at every one of them and to take a lot of time in doing so. When the last one had been admired she took up Jim's valentine. She read the couplet over several times and said she hadn't believed that he could "write poetry like that." This made Jim very proud of himself.

"But, Jimmy," she said at last, "aren't you mistaken about the cost of the valentine?"

"Certainly not. It took all my savings."

"I'm sure it didn't cost so much."

"Why are you sure?"

"Because I bought it myself a year ago, and paper wasn't near so high then as it is today."

This was said with a twinkle in her eye.

Jim resolved to make a bluff.

"I've heard before this of girls accusing fellows of sending back their own valentines. You can't come that racket on me."

"What'll you bet?"

"Bet what?"

"That I can't prove you sent me back valentine I sent you."

"Make it a pound of candy against a box of cigars."

"Done."

Inserting the points of a hairpin under the Cupid in the valentine, she exposed the letters H. S.

"That stands for Helen Strong."

Jimmy was game.

"Oh, it was easy enough for you to write those letters in there after you received the valentine."

Helen burst out laughing.

Proper Care of Rubbers.

Rubbers should not be dried where it is too warm, nor should they be left caked with mud and dirt. When rubbers become faded and dingy, some people renew them by rubbing with vaseline. If this is done, it should be promptly rubbed off and the rubber polished dry, on account of the effect of the greasy substance. A quick polishing with a banana skin will renew the finish, for a time at least.

Ordinarily the man who ceases to ask questions has ceased to learn. And when a man ceases to learn he grows complacent. Staidness sets in and he begins to deteriorate. The lack of curiosity in a man is a sign of age. You can be sure that you are getting old if you have lost curiosity. But old age (intellectually) comes on very early with some people and with others it never seems to come. Many old people have younger and more eager minds than their children.—American Magazine.

The Unlaid Eggs

The grain-fed hen usually carries a number of unlaid eggs—yolks which she cannot complete into eggs and lay, because her feed lacks the necessary white-forming nutrients. (That's why egg-yolks are found in a hen, when it is dressed). Many of these yolks of unfinished eggs are finally absorbed back into the hen's system.

Missouri Experiment Station tests showed that 100 lbs. of wheat, corn, oats, barley and kaffir corn make (above bodily maintenance) an average of 224 yolks and only 154 whites. Based on data from the same experiments, Purina formulas produce, (above bodily maintenance) as follows:—

Purina Scratch Feed	247.49 yolks	142.11 whites
Purina Chicken Chowder	182.05 "	282.55 "
Combined Ration	429.54 yolks	424.66 whites

These feeds, used in combination, form the most perfectly balanced and economical egg producer you can buy. Purina Chicken Chowder is the egg-completing ration; containing exactly the right feed elements to make the necessary whites. That's why we can positively guarantee

More eggs or money back

on Purina Chicken Chowder if fed with Purina Scratch Feed as directed. You take no risk. Write for further information and for our

PREPARING TO ARM MERCHANT SHIPS

By Telegraph to the Freeman

Washington, Feb 14 — The United States navy today is busily engaged in completing arrangements for the arming of American merchant vessels in preparation for the immediate resumption of trans-Atlantic commerce in defiance of Germany's threat that such vessels will be sunk.

A high official of the navy department pointed to the fact that there was now stored sufficient guns ranging in calibre from one pounds to ... to completely equip the merchant vessels ... and that many of the vessels listed in the merchant marine, including the St Louis and St Paul of the American line, were constructed with the view of being armed.

It was further pointed out that ... could either be loaned or sold ... to the companies desiring them without any further action by congress and this is would be the course followed by the department.

Vessels of the St Louis type would be the first to be armed and this work will be completed within a few days.

Already numerous applications from honorably discharged gunners from the navy have been received directly by the American Line office in New York and through the navy department indicating that there will be sufficient personnel for the manning of the guns.

HOW TO ECONOMIZE IN THE USE OF COAL

—If the consumer is not getting his money's worth—and probably he is not—says the anthracite bureau of information, the fault may be with the stove or furnace, the kind of fuel used or the method of regulation. Here are some of the don'ts picked from a pamphlet issued by the bureau:

Don't put in too much coal or too little. Don't crowd it above the top of the fire brick lining in range, cylinder stove or hot air furnace. Fill the fuel space twice a day in winter weather, heaping the coal slightly in the centre.

Don't add small quantities of coal several times a day with attendant shakings, that means loss in economy and comfort. Shake the grate only twice a day, before fresh coal is put in, and stop when a bright light shows underneath.

Don't leave the feed door open; it cools the heating surfaces. All checking of draft should be accomplished by shutting the ash pit door and opening the check damper in the stovepipe.

Don't neglect the furnace in cold weather. See that the coal is properly consumed and not shaken through the grate to pass out with the ashes. Keep the ash pit empty. Don't let the ashes bank up under the grate, as ... burn out ... but tend to warp the grate bars. Remove the ashes regularly once a day even if only a small amount has fallen.

Don't use the wrong size of coal. Ordinary domestic ranges require chestnut. Larger sizes can use stove coal, but chestnut will give satisfaction. Fairly large steam and hot water boilers are best operated with egg size. In the larger sizes use stove ... or mixed with chestnut. Hot air furnaces of all sizes generally in use should be fed with egg.

If the right size and quality of coal is used no ash sifting is required. The coal should burn to a fine ash and its first trip through the stove or furnace should be its last. Clinkers are usually a sign of improper use of the poker or improper regulation of drafts. Too hot a fire produces clinker.

Dry air is a poor conductor of heat and is also bad for the health. Keep the air in the house reasonably moist. This can be done by placing an open vessel of water on or near each radiator. All hot air furnaces and modern base burner stoves have receptacles for this purpose. They should be refilled every time the fire is replenished.

PIN MONEY.

How a Quaint Explanation of It Became Current

The term "pin money" dates back to the seventeenth century, when the modern pin was invented. After that time the maker was allowed to sell them openly only on Jan 1 and 2, so that court ladies and fashionable dames alike were compelled to buy a large quantity to last them over the year. So extremely important was this yearly purchase that husbands gave their wives large sums of money for the purpose. Pins and by pins became cheaper and cheaper and women spent their allowance on other vanities, but the term "pin money" remained in use for all spending money.

The expression "salt money" is another such. This dates very far back, when the Roman soldiers in the salt mines were paid in salt. The salt they got in return for their labor was called in Latin "salarium" or salt allowance. The word salarium later was applied to the fees men got for a job. For instance the Roman noble would say, "For patching my coat I will give the fellow a slight salarium—a bit of money to buy salt with." Finally "salarium" came to mean wage, salary, what it does today. When we say a man's not worth his salt we mean that he is not worth his salary or wages.

How to Keep Roses Fresh In the House

Cut flowers, especially roses, will stay fresh longer if they are kept in salt water. To get the best results a small piece of the stem should be cut off each day. The stem should then be put about half an inch in salt put in the salt water. The water should be ... Put in the vase each ... great care should be taken to drop water on the roses, them ... it will turn them dark.

THE FAIR CRITIC

Homes Are Built to Please the Architect, Not the Housewife.

WHAT ONE WOMAN THINKS.

Sinks Hung Too Low, Coal Bins Near the Laundry Tubs Instead of the Furnace and Doors That Open the Wrong Way Are Breaking Up Homes

Criticising the architect's plan of most modern houses one woman says:

"The stove is in a corner—lovely situation"—and right beside the window so that one either goes without air or has the gas blow out every other minute.

"The sink, which is about six inches too low, is also in a corner, with only one draining board, so that after washing ... one has to turn completely around to place it on a table behind. Also if one wants a combination spigot one pays to have it put in because I have yet to see a sink that was fitted.

FARM POULTRY

START IN POULTRY BUSINESS

Spring is a good time to start in the poultry business. Either obtain a good breeding pen from someone who is reliable and who raises the breed you fancy or else send for eggs. You do not have much time to obtain breeding pens for most breeders of purebred stock have their pens mated by this time and without doubt will have disposed of their surplus choice breeding males by advertising them last fall and selling them to parties wanting good breeders.

The other plan then is to send to these breeders and ... their price lists at once. Even if you do not care to have the eggs for a month or so send now and obtain the price lists and get your order booked for others are doing the same thing and most breeders send out eggs in the order booked. Delays oftentimes cost much due to inability of the shipper to fill his many orders as promptly as he may desire.

BEGIN FIGHT ON PARASITES

Poor Policy to Wait Until Spring When Insects Become Numerous—Dust Birds Thoroughly

A common practice among poultrymen is to wait in the spring until lice and other parasites have become so numerous that they will be no trouble. By far the better plan is to begin the fight early and keep them from getting a start.

One of the best means of doing this is to dust the birds thoroughly with a good insect powder at regular intervals beginning in late winter. There is no harm in giving the house an application occasionally even in midwinter since they are never entirely free from lice, and everyone of these pests killed before the breeding season ... means a million or two less to fight next summer.

ROOSTER TO IMPROVE FLOCK

In Selecting Young Fowls Use Best Judgment—Certain Characteristics May Be Noted

The kind of cockerel used is far more important than most farmer poultry raisers believe. The fact that one bird looks well and is healthy and active is a good indication of a good bird. But this is not enough. The male bird should be of such good breeding that he will improve the flock. If he is not a full blood ... he is not worthy of his place as head of the flock.

When you are selecting the male birds from the young cockerels of your own flock you should use your best judgement and find the best individuals. In this case you must be influenced by the appearance of the birds as for the most part the cockerels will be about the same in breeding unless you have trapnested and kept records on the hens.

It is rather hard to select young cockerels as they may often deceive one when they are quite young. There ... a ... speculation in selecting for breeding purposes. Nevertheless there are certain characteristics that may be noted. From these a careful breeder will determine the male birds for his flock.

CHICKENS KEPT IN BROODERS

Much Loss Can Be Avoided by Keeping Everything Clean—Use Cut Straw for Litter

Much of the loss in raising chicks in brooders can be obviated by keeping the floor of brooders and brooder houses covered with an inch of clean sand.

Chaff, corn stover or cut straw may be used in the same for scratching ... Such material as clover or timothy chaff or buckwheat hulls are objectionable in the brooder house. The chicks pick up the particles of the fuzzy stuff and are not able to pass them through the crop.

The ... chicks need a daily feeding of fine cut green grass if they are to do well.

DON'T BE PERSONAL

The Cruelty and the Cruelty of Being Plain Spoken

Among the unprivate members of our families are the closest and dearest. There are mothers who harass independent and sensible daughters with silly little admonitions about wearing rubbers and getting home early. ... who ... continually in public their daughters' predilection for tennis and dislike for fine sewing, who never find it possible to understand why their daughters have views or feelings that differ from their own, says the Woman's Home Companion. Two cupfuls of pumpkin thoroughly mashed after having been steamed in a colander, two cupfuls of milk, one egg, half teaspoonful of ginger, one fourth cupful of sugar, one fourth cupful of molasses, half teaspoonful of salt, two tablespoonfuls of raisins. Boil the raisins half an hour, let the water boil away, slip out the seeds and add the pulp to the pumpkin. Scald the milk and mix with the pumpkin, add the seasoning, molasses and egg last. Bake in a plate lined and rimmed with crust.

Breaking on the Wheel

In medieval days breaking on the wheel, a most barbarous mode of inflicting capital punishment, was often used in France and Germany. It consisted of stretching the victim upon a wheel or upon a wooden frame in the shape of St Andrew's cross and then breaking his limbs by blows from iron bars. The sufferer was then left to die slowly from fear, thirst and exhaustion.

"Just Livin Along"

Frank L Stanton of the Atlanta Constitution is one of the best known newspaper men in America. Likewise he is one of America's sweetest poets. One of his dainty lyrics is entitled "Just Livin Along." It is a song of optimism. It embodies a philosophy which might be adopted with profit by all men and women.

Let us be thankful that we're just livin along.

Life, joyous, jubilant, vital and thrilling, is all about us. Birds bursting ... and flowers live and love and ... to the great ...

Indeed is there anything other or greater than life in its myriad manifestations? It doesn't much matter how we designate the forms and aspects of being. Let us be thankful that we're just livin along. We shall continue to live. All our worries and frettings will not affect that fact, though they may hurry us to other condition—hurry us more swiftly to a new plane of existence.

But let us join in the song of the optimist and be happy forever that we are just livin along.—Dayton Herald.

Good Journalism

There are many stories of the journalistic genius of the blind Joseph Pulitzer. One cropped up the other day.

There was a big championship golf tournament to be played, a golfer said. This was years ago before Mr Pulitzer went blind. Golf at that time was in its infancy in this country.

Well, Mr Pulitzer sent for his dozen best reporters and special writers and lining them up before him said:

"Those who understand golf stand on the left, those who are ignorant of it on the right."

The stars separated themselves accordingly. All understood golf but three—three very excellent writers.

"You three chaps will cover the tournament," said Mr Pulitzer with his nervous smile. "I want all our readers to enjoy our story of this event and since most of them are ignorant of golf what interests you three will be sure to interest them."—Washington Star.

School Strikes In Japan

School strikes seem peculiar to Japan, and invariably one is under way. Such a strike is a calamity dreaded by head master and undermaster alike. A head master who has had a strike in his school is under suspicion even though he may be quite innocent of any unjust conduct, and eventually he must seek a new field for his activities, so unpleasant do the students make his continued stay. When students combine against one of the undermasters he has nothing to do but tender his resignation. If the strike is temporarily calmed down it is tacitly understood that the master in question is on the lookout for a new place. Sometimes strikes take the place for the retention of the teacher rather than for his dismissal. In this latter case it is always the head master who suffers the most, as the move is directed against him for not retaining some favorite.

How to keep your money safe from thieves is a problem that was solved by the inhabitants of Yap in the Caroline Islands when they devised a currency too heavy for burglars to carry away. A large hole in the center is a feature of the Yap money, and the ... are perforated. The stones are used for large purchases ... when ... purchase a ... he must part with ... he is required to ... these ... are ... well earned.—American Boy.

Symphony Records —a Columbia Triumph!

THE wonder-achievement of music-recording—the perfect reproduction of a symphony orchestra—was a Columbia triumph, the culmination of Columbia leadership in orchestral recording.

These records of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, the Little Symphony, and the records of ballet music from Serge de Diaghileff's Ballet Russe, made under the direction of Ernest Ansermet, its former conductor, have won the highest tribute of leading musicians for perfection of detail and ensemble effect:

A 5857 12-inch $1.00 — GIOCONDA—Dance of the Hours. Part I. Prince's Symphony Orchestra. / GIOCONDA — Dance of the Hours. Part II. Prince's Symphony Orchestra.

A 2074 10-inch 75c — LA FERIA—LA REJA. (Lacombe.) Little Symphony Orchestra. George Barrère, conductor. / AUBADE NO. 1. (Lalo.) (Arranged by H. Mouton.) Little Symphony Orchestra. George Barrère, conductor.

A 5845 12-inch $1.50 — CARNAVAL (1) PREAMBULE, (2) VALSE NOBLE, (3) COQUETTE. (Schumann.) Ballet Series. Ernest Ansermet, conductor. / CARNAVAL. (1) RECONNAISSANCE, (2) PAGANINI, (3) VALSE, (4) AVEU. (Schumann.) Ballet Series, Ernest Ansermet, conductor.

The "music-note" trade-mark means not only supremacy in orchestral recording, but superiority in every field of instrumental music.

Make any test of this that you wish at your dealer's—Columbia Records will prove supreme! Hear them today—"Hearing is believing."

AN EFFICIENCY MEETING.

Western Union Employes Hold a Conference in Kingston.

Representatives of the Western Union Telegraph Company from Fleischmanns, Haines Falls, Cairo, Catskill, Leeds, Saugerties, Tannersville and Kingston participated in an educational and efficiency meeting at the local office of the company on John street, Tuesday evening.

Miss Rose Klein, manager of the Kingston office, who acted as chairman of the evening's session, made a very interesting address on up-to-date office routine, and J. E. Mendelson, commercial representative, from New York headquarters of the Western Union, pointed out to those present the numerous ways in which the company's services can be applied in a business and social way to the requirements of the public.

Similar gatherings are being held monthly by the Western Union in every important city of the United States and have for their purpose the training of all members of their organization so that they may become efficient "sellers" of the telegraph and that the wants of the public will be cared for in an intelligent and systematic manner. Those present were: Mrs. S. A. Hazen, manager, Saugerties; A. H. Alden, manager, Tannersville; Ivan Humphrey, Fleischmanns; E. A. Harvey, manager, Catskill; R. A. Austin, manager, Cairo; Wm. T. Keough, manager, Leeds; Mrs. C. A. Martin, manager, Haines Falls; J. E. Mendelson, commercial representative, New York city; and the following from Kingston, Miss Rose Klein, manager; Janice D. "PRESIDENT" MENOCAL.

PRESIDENT OF CUBS FACES REVOLT.

President Menocal.

Havana, Feb. 14.—President Menocal is facing a revolution among the troops of the Cuban army. Thirty men of the Eleventh and Eighth Infantry at Camp Columbia, near Marianao, revolted and escaped to the interior. They were joined by many former rebels and brigands, and it is feared will cause considerable trouble.

At Canas, in the province of Havana, similar uprisings occurred and heavy forces of troops believed to be loyal have been thrown around the National Palace here.

In Northern France.

It is strange and terrible to visit Paris—and no one can be happy—but to one who has loved France it is far worse to visit the lovely northern country. There is here a sense of emptiness, as if terror still hushed the normal cheerful noises of mankind. The people of these regions have lost everything. Their houses are burned; their animals, even the rabbits, are gone; their farm implements are shapeless pieces of grotesquely melted iron. They live in temporary, patched shelters and in the houses built by the Society of Friends or mass themselves in some nearby village that escaped destruction. After a time in this silent country one gets the sense that destruction is normal, and tears start to one's eyes at the sight of an undestroyed French village smiling in the sun. So changed are all values that I could feel nothing strange in the words of the woman who told me: "Fortunately my husband is a hunchback. He can't go to the war."—Mary Heaton Vorse in Century.

Abused Superlatives.

It is hard to make people understand that the adjective almost invariably weakens the noun and that the word "very," for instance, does not strengthen a statement, but qualifies it. But the use of the superlative is even more abused. We talk of the "unimpeachable" honesty of somebody or other, knowing perfectly well that anybody's honesty may be impeached. What seems to be required is a readjustment of our habits of thought and better teaching of the value of words and even of the usefulness of grammar. A superlative necessarily involves an axiom. It commits you, like saying that the sum of the angles of any triangle is equal to two right angles. Your dilemma arises when you try to prove it. "Impregnability" and "invulnerability" and all other superlatives in general use are posing as axioms when they are mostly fallacies.—Wall Street Journal.

The Turkey.

"Though a little vain and silly, the turkey," Franklin said, "is a native American and a bird of courage." Had he known more on the subject he would have added that the turkey is both wise and cleanly and is never vain or silly except during the mating season. Can more be said of any other bird—or man?

When Authors Write Best.

The time when an author may do his best work is a much-disputed question and an interesting one. It depends, of course, largely upon the moods and temperament of the individual, but perhaps more largely still upon his habits. The common belief of many authors, however, has been that their best work is done at night.

RED CROSS BRANCH IN SAUGERTIES

In response to an invitation received last week from the women of Saugerties, represented by Mrs. Howard Gillespy, Mrs. C. N. Reed, chairman of the Ulster County Chapter of the Red Cross, Mrs. George Chandler, assistant chairman, and Mrs. W. N. Fessenden, secretary, visited Saugerties on Tuesday afternoon and assisted in the forming of a Saugerties Auxiliary of the Ulster County Chapter of the Red Cross. The meeting was held in the village library, which is a most up-to-date and attractive building, admirably equipped, and where is housed the remarkable geological collection of the Rev. Mr. Cole. The platform of the meeting room was adorned with a beautiful silk flag surmounted with a gold eagle. Some fifty or more of the women of Saugerties were present at the meeting and all were desirous of doing what they could for their country.

Mrs. Howard Gillespy was made temporary chairman, with Mrs. Byron Davis as temporary secretary. In response to the request that the women of Kingston tell what joining the Red Cross would mean, the work required, and other details of organizing an Auxiliary, Mrs. Fessenden gave a brief outline of the history of the American Red Cross, showing the neutrality of the organization its growth and efficiency as an aid to the government in times of peace and war. Mrs. Reed gave a more specific acount of how to form the Auxiliary, the various activites which an Auxiliary might enter into, and also explained the manner in which the financial matters of the Red Cross are carried on. Mrs. Chandler, after relating the story of a visit of Major Chandler to Saugerties, in which he was to speak, with its most amusing incidents, which quite enlivened the meeting, told of the First Aid Work, and dwelt upon the immediate desirability of increased membership.

After the Kingston women had spoken, Mrs. Gillespy put the question of whether or no those present wished to form a Red Cross Auxiliary, to vote, and it was unanimously voted that such an Auxiliary should be formed. Officers were therefore, promptly elected as follows: Chairman, Mrs. Kaufmann; vice chairman, Mrs. Emerick, Mrs. John Fellows, Miss Sarah Curley, Mrs. William Sickles, Miss Edna Martin and Miss Carrie Kleeber, each representing a church in the village; secretary, Miss Helen Davis.

A communication was received from Snyder Hose Company, of the village, offering the use of their rooms for the women to work in, provided they should organize, and the secretary was authorized to acknowledge the communication with thanks and acceptance of the generous offer. Miss Barrett, whose store occupies a prominent place in the business section of the community, also offered the use of her store as a receiving station for materials or other such supplies as should have to be gathered together and this offer was accepted gratefully. Word was received from Mrs. John Washburn stating that she would do all in her power to interest the Camp Fire Girls in the work, and a representative of the Saugerties D. A. R. stated that that organization would assist in the work. Before the meeting adjourned it was decided that the auxiliary should meet weekly as soon as completely organized, and the suggestion was made that certain days and place should be given out each week for the enrollment of members.

The majority of those present became Red Cross members during the afternoon while others signified their intention of helping in any work taken up, even if they might not be able to join. During the meeting two exceptionally excellent addresses were delivered by the Rev. Mr. Wemple and the Rev. Mr. Turrentine on the international situation of this country and the world problems of today. Mrs. Reed also, after the formation of the Saugerties Auxiliary, heartily thanked the women of Saugerties for the assistance given the country through their joining actively in the Red Cross work. The meeting was brought to a close with the singing by all standing of "America," and the Saugerties Auxiliary of the Ulster County Chapter of the Red Cross adjourned until called for its next meeting by the chair.

Think of These Things.

When thou wishest to delight thyself, think of the virtues of those who live with thee; for instance, the activity of one, and the modesty of another, and the liberality of a third, and some other good quality of a fourth. For nothing delights so much as the examples of the virtues, when they are exhibited in the morals of those who live with us and present themselves in abundance, as far as is possible. Wherefore we must keep them before us.—Marcus Aurelius.

Surely a Thick Fog.

Some ancient mariners were sitting in a seaport tavern relating their experiences of fogs. "Ah!" said one old salt, "I've seen some pretty thick fogs in my time. Why, off the coast of Newfoundland the fog was sometimes so thick that we used to sit on the deck-rail and lean against it! We were sitting one night as usual, with our backs to the fog, when suddenly it lifted, and we all went flop into the sea. A bit thick, wasn't it?"

Sandcrabs for Chickens.

The owner of a chicken ranch in California feeds his fowls on sandcrabs. These he catches in a trap which Popular Mechanics describes as like a large dustpan with a wire screen bottom. He often gets as much as a peck of crabs at a dip. He boils them, dries them in the sun and grinds them to a coarse meal. The chickens grow fat and lay well on this diet.

An Episode In Petrograd

By ELINOR MARSH

Billy Oglethorpe was in a casino in Petrograd where the high dignitaries of the capital were wont to "buck the tiger," and, since he had unlimited means, he won a pile of money. Sitting opposite him at the table was a very pretty woman, who was observant of Billy's winnings. Presently she said something to a man sitting near her. He arose and went out. After awhile he returned and whispered something in the lady's ear which appeared to agitate her profoundly. Then came two men who touched the lady on the shoulder. With despair written on her countenance she arose and was about to accompany the men from the casino when she turned and cast an imploring glance at the American. Then she turned and went out with the men.

Billy hurriedly scooped together the pile before him and followed her. At the door the men put her into a carriage and before getting in themselves slipped a pair of handcuffs on her. She had just time to give Billy one appealing look when the carriage was driven away. Billy called a cab and, slipping a handful of rubles into the coachman's palm, told him to follow the carriage and on no account let it get out of his sight. Then he got in the cab.

The carriage drew up before a house that might have been a dwelling or might have contained offices. The lady was taken from the carriage and escorted between the two men into the building and the door was shut behind them.

The young American was uncertain what next to do. The Russian revolution was then on and many arrests were being made. Quite likely the lady was a revolutionist. Billy accounted for the circumstances attending her arrest as follows: While she was watching Billy win money she had been casting furtive glances at the entrance of the casino. Doubtless she was fearing arrest. She had sent the person with her out to see if there was danger. He had returned and informed her that government officials were without. This accounted for her agitation. Such was this very natural explanation of what had occurred, and Billy was satisfied with it.

He did not see that he could do anything in the matter until the next day. So he went to his hotel and to bed. But slumber did not come. He was haunted by that appealing look.

The next morning he went to the house where the woman had been taken and stood looking at it for some time. Presently the object of his interest came to a window. Billy was standing where she could not very well help noticing him. When their gaze met she gave him that same imploring look. Billy pointed to the door, meaning "Shall I enter the house?" The woman shook her head, meaning "No." Then she went away from the window, but soon returned and, folding a bit of paper, she raised the sash and dropped it on the sidewalk below. Billy crossed the street, strolled past the house and, as he did so, stooped and picked up the paper, which he read.

He was informed that the writer was implicated in the revolution and would be sent to Siberia. She would much rather be executed, she said, for not even death could be as horrible as Siberian exile. The missive closed with this statement: "Only one thing can save me—money. The police may be bribed, but, alas, it would require an enormous sum to tempt them!"

If money would save her she was as good as saved, for money was nothing to Billy. He had heard that graft pervaded all officials in Russia and was not surprised at the lady's statement. Taking his winnings of the night before, more than 50,000 rubles ($25,000), he marched boldly up to the house where the captive was held and rang the bell. The summons was answered by one of the men who had arrested the lady. Billy tipped him the wink and was admitted. Then he said that he would pay a large price for the freedom of the prisoner. The man listened without reply till Billy offered 50,000 rubles. The man said that he must divide with many others and the sum would not go around. Billy finally closed with him for 80,000 rubles.

It was arranged that Billy was to call for the prisoner that evening in a closed carriage. She would be released, and he would pay the money. At the hour appointed Billy called. The lady, veiled, appeared at the door and, accompanied by one of her captors, went to the carriage. She raised her veil so that Billy could see her face, and Billy handed the man a roll of bills. Then the pair were driven away.

The lady's gratitude was Billy's reward. She asked to be taken to a house, where she would remain concealed till she could escape from Russia. Billy was granted permission to go there to see her the next day.

Billy made the call, but did not gain admittance. He surmised that the lady had found it expedient to change her quarters.

He did not see her again for several years. Meanwhile he had been to America and various other countries. His second meeting with her was in the Casino at Petrograd. She was betting high. Billy asked who she was. The person he asked replied with a shrug of the shoulders.

Billy concluded that he had been victimized.

Frightful Friends.

The friend who welcomes you by creeping up behind and knocking off your hat.

The friend who invites you to the theater and buys only one ticket.

The friend who introduces you to Miss Wallflower and then disappears.

The friend you ask to dinner on Saturday and who stays over the week end.

The friend who drops in to talk over old times and incidentally borrows all your spare cash.

The friend who insists that you visit him and continually quarrels with his wife.

The friend who telephones you in the middle of the night that he's been arrested.—Life.

Seen on an Ostrich Farm.

It is no uncommon thing to see a male ostrich strutting about followed by three or four distinct broods, all of different sizes. When the incubating process is completed the cock bird leads his young ones off and, if he meets another proud papa, engages in a terrific combat with him. The vanquished bird retires without a single chick, while the other, surrounded by the two broods, walks away triumphantly.

Just a Precaution.

"So you are attending cooking school?" said the friend. "Are you going to do your own work after you are married?"

"No; I want to be able to teach my husband how to prepare the meals in an emergency."

Too Much.

Doctor—Have you tried counting up to 100? Insomnia Patient—Yes, but at forty I remember that's the amount of your bill, and at eighty my wife's new gown gets my goat!—Exchange.

HUGE STEEL NET TO GUARD NEW YORK HARBOR.

Map of New York Harbor.

The net is constructed of heavy steel cable and cross sections of huge chains, and will be the largest and strongest ever constructed in this country.

It will stretch from Rockaway Point to Sandy Hook and is especially heavy in the sections which cross Ambrose, Swash and Main Channels.

A pamphlet is being widely circulated in Germany according to the Socialist Volkswacht of Zurich which points to the deposition of the Hohenzollerns from power as the only means for the Fatherland to escape destruction The present situation in Germany is compared to that in France in 1814 and 1815, and the writer of the article asks if the Kaiser will save Germany by abdication as Napoleon saved France Victory for Germany is pronounced impossible and only a change of dynasty can mitigate the conditions of defeat Among the other interesting suggestions of this pamphleteer is the substitution of Wittelsbach (the house of Bavaria) for Hohenzollern as a guarantee of peace and as offering a prospect of a greater Germany despite defeat The Zurich newspaper pronounces this opinion as widely held throughout South Germany, where the peace-loving Bavarians are in the majority It is not strange that it should be making headway in the face of popular dismay that the successes announced for the German arms are not followed by general peace overtures—victories without peace rather than "peace without victory." The German people cannot now be entertaining hope of any greater successes in the East nor can they believe in victory in the West The opinion now current in the strongholds of Kultur seems to be that if Germany can maintain her present military positions, she can win the war under water It is the last desperate stroke for supremacy in the war of nations

The detention of ex-Ambassador Gerard at Berlin excites curiosity as to what would have been done with him or to him if the allies had refused safe conduct to ex-Ambassador Bernstorff Precedents are hard to find unless we go back a century or two in the history of Turkey and other countries of about the same level The only modern precedents among civilized powers are furnished by Germany herself, the British embassy in Berlin having been attacked by a mob in August, 1914, and indignities having been at the same time heaped upon the French Ambassador who was required to pay 5,000 francs (afterwards refunded) before he was allowed to leave the country Possibly all this explains the anxiety at Berlin for Count von Bernstorff, who at all times has been as safe among us as President Wilson himself

The director of the experimental school at a teachers' college wants "to find out why it is that parents now say that their children come out of school without knowing anything and to overcome this criticism with a better training" Perhaps so many young people come from college without knowing anything because they go there with no other object in view than to have a good time and misdirect their energies accordingly.

More than one billion dollars in gross earnings have been lost by the railroads in this country during the last decade through car idleness Against this, the loss within the same period from car shortages is a little less than $79,000,000 These informing figures are made public by the American Railway Association They throw an interesting light on a railroad problem of which the public hears little except when the shipper's ox is gored by a scarcity of cars For instance, from November, 1917, to last March there was a surplus of freight cars approximating from 130 000 to more than 200,000 which figure was recorded in October 1914 Then, after the lean years, came the enormous impetus to our foreign trade due to the war, in which the railroads were called upon to perform in many instances, a service 40 per cent in excess of the preceding year The tremendous increases in freight car using facilities by the railroads in enlarged cars and terminal improvements cleared tracks in some measure but failed to release equipment and left the shortage as bad as ever It is a big problem for the railroads to face It is the same thing that the farmer or small manufacturer goes up against in the scarcity of labor at certain periods of the year and a surplus at others Co-operation on the part of the shippers is one needful thing, as this would mean prompt loading and unloading of freight cars The increase in the demurrage charges, made recently, should be an effective factor to this end Meanwhile, the railroads are making no mistake in acquainting the public with the embarrassment of riches arising from the tremendous increase in freight shipments

By SADIE OLCOTT

'What's the use of spending money for valentines with an array like this already at hand to cost nothing but a stamp'"

The words were spoken by Jimmy Emerson on the 13th day of February. He had gone to a box in his closet and taken out a bundle of valentines he had received the year before and was trying to remember from whom they had come

'This one is a daisy This lace window built out from the main part is a peach If there's no mark on it I'm going to take the risk of using it

He examined the valentine with a hand magnifying glass and, not finding any mark on it, laid it aside to send to his best girl Then he selected another to send to his next best girl and in this way made use of not less than a dozen valentines

On the valentine he sent to his best girl Helen Strong, he wrote a couplet indicating that he was pining for an expression of her love which, if received he would treasure forever "Forever was the last word of the second line and rimed with 'never' the last word of the first line He didn't disguise his handwriting for he was proud of his couplet and didn't wish it or the beautiful valentine to go to waste

Jimmy addressed stamped and mailed his valentines early in the afternoon of the 13th of February The next morning the postman brought him a batch of valentines The first one he opened he recognized as one he had sent out himself the day before There was an indorsement on it as follows

My love for you is just as warm as when I sent you this just one year ago

The blood mounted to Jim's cheek at being detected in using an old valentine

"Better luck next time,' and he opened another

The luck was certainly better for he had never seen the inclosure before The third and the fourth were also new to him On the fifth which was one he had sent, was an indorsement

What did you send it back for' I don't want it

Jim had grown somewhat callous by this time, but the truth is he was looking for his valentine from Helen Strong Beside hers the rest were of very little importance However, he opened them all without coming upon one that bore any trace whatever of having been sent by her

"I'll get it by the next mail" he muttered and tossed those he had received on to a table from which they were destined later on to be brushed into a waste paper basket During the day he lounged about the house and whenever he heard the postman's whistle he went to the door himself in eager expectancy of his valentine from Helen But no valentine came In the evening he called up on the telephone,

"Is that you, Helen?

"I'm Jim

"Got anything on hand this evening?

"Well, I'll run in for a little while

"Did you get many valentines today?

'I sent you one It was a beauty, cost $2 50

'Yes mine was the one with the couplet.

"I'm glad you liked 'em

"Yes I flatter myself that profruding—what d'ye call it?—is very pretty

'I didn't write anything under the Cupid

Can't you tell me what it was on the phone?

"Well, I'll be over in a few minutes'

When Jimmy arrived he found Helen sitting by a table in her own private parlor with a stack of valentines beside her Before she would answer any questions she insisted upon showing her love missives Jim took no interest in those that had been sent to any one except himself, but Helen forced him to look at every one of them and to take a lot of time in doing so When the last one had been admired she took up Jim's valentine. She read the couplet over several times and said she hadn't believed that he could "write poetry like that' This made Jim very proud of himself

"But, Jimmy she said at last, aren't you mistaken about the cost of the valentine'

"Certainly not It took all my savings

'I'm sure it didn't cost so much"

Why are you sure?'

"Because I bought it myself a year ago and paper wasn't near so high then as it is today

This was said with a twinkle in her eye

Jim resolved to make a bluff

"I've heard before this of girls accusing fellows of sending back their own valentines You can't come that racket on me

"What'll you bet'

'Bet what?'

'That I can't prove you sent me back a valentine I sent you'

"Make it a pound of candy against a box of cigars'

'Done'

Inserting the points of a hairpin under the Cupid in the valentine she exposed the letters H S

'That stands for Helen Strong'

Jimmy was game

"Oh, it was easy enough for you to write those letters in there after you received the valentine."

Helen burst out laughing.

PLAN FOR A STATE FOOD COMMISSION

New Legislation Designed to Benefit Consumer, Producer and Business Men and for the Elimination of Fraud and Waste—Commissioners to Serve Without Pay.

Following six months' investigation in both the rural sections and the cities of this state from both a producer's and a consumer's standpoint, the Wicks joint legislative committee has completed a draft of the food and markets bill which it is hoped may eventually benefit both producers and consumers. The bill will be introduced in both houses this week. In its printed form the bill covers approximately 200 pages. A very complete synopsis is given below. The proposed act creates a food commission and will probably be entitled "An act in relation to agriculture, food and markets."

Section 3 of the act defines what shall be unfair practices among which are the following:

1.—Discrimination between communities or residents of different communities.

2.—Attempting to restrain any person from procuring an article of food from another person by requiring an agreement that he will not so procure it or by making some discrimination in the compensation to be paid, etc.

Twelve additional unfair practices are enumerated which are designed to make the markets of the state free to everyone.

The bill by section 4 declares that the production, manufacturing, marketing and distribution of food and of all the instrumentalities thereof is a matter of public interest and a proper subject for investigation, encouragement, development and regulation by the state in order to protect the health of the citizen and to provide an abundant supply of pure and wholesome food, to prevent frauds and oppressions in the traffic therein, and to eliminate waste and loss in the distribution thereof.

Organization of Department.

Article 2 provides there shall be a department of agriculture, foods and markets, the head of which shall be the commissioner of agriculture foods and markets. The commission shall consist of the chairman of the public service commission of the second district, the commissioner of public markets of the city of New York, ex-officio and without salary from the state, five commissioners, appointed by the the governor, subject to confirmation by the senate.

The first five commissioners shall consist of the commissioner of agriculture now in office who shall continue to be known as the commissioner of agriculture, the commissioner of foods and markets now in office, who shall during his term be known as the commissioner of markets, and three additional commissioners appointed by the governor.

At least three of the appointive commissioners shall be representatives of the dairy and agricultural interests of the state. The offices of the department shall be at Albany. The present department of agriculture is taken over and continued as a whole and the present provisions of the agricultural law, with certain amendments amplifying its powers, are written into the new statute.

All the present officers and employes of existing departments are transferred to the new department without change or loss of standing under the civil service requirements or otherwise. Certain activities of the board of health are transferred to the new department. The bureau of weights and measures is transferred in toto with all its employes of the new department, who continue in their present office, subject hereafter to the direction and control of the commission. It is believed that by combining these departments ultimately money will be saved to the state. Only one set of state inspectors will be in the field responsible to one department. It is believed that the duties of these employes can be so consolidated as to result in improved service to the state.

As these commissioners are vested with extensive powers and duties such as will require the entire time and attention of the five appointive members, the salaries to be provided will be sufficient to procure suitable men, but will probably be considerably less in amount than is now paid to the public service commissioners.

The salaries to be paid remains to be adjusted by the legislature.

The present bureau of supervision and co-operative associations is maintained.

Some of the general powers and duties of the commission are as follows:

1.—Execute the laws in relation to agriculture and agricultural products and cause to be carried into effect the provisions of this chapter and the rules of the commission.

2.—Perform the duties and exercise the powers conferred by any general or special law upon the commissioner of agriculture, or designate one of the commissioners to perform such duties and exercise such powers.

3.—Investigate fully as to the source of food supply for the state, the production, manufacture, transportation, storage, marketing and distribution of food sold, offered for sale, stored or held within the state, the cost of food at the point of production, the expense of transportation to the leading centers of population and of the marketing and distribution to consumers.

4.—Collect accurate data and statistics as to the sources and prices of food produced, manufactured, stored or held within the state, the quantity available from time to time and the location thereof.

5.—In case of emergency creating or threatening to create a scarcity of foods within the state, take such measures to secure relief as the commission may deem advisable.

6.—Inquire and recommend as to the best methods of increasing the supply of food, and co-operate with other public and private agencies for such purpose.

7.—Investigate and regulate the plans and methods of co-operative corporations and of combinations and associations for the purchase, sale, marketing or distribution of foods within the state.

8.—Investigate and furnish information as to land tendencies, with a view of promoting the interests of both the land owner and the tenant.

9.—Aid and assist in the establishment, organization and maintenance of co-operative corporations and associations among producers and consumers for the purpose of securing more direct business relations between them, of promoting and conserving the interests of producers and reducing the cost of living to consumers.

10.—Act as mediator or arbitrator, when invited, in any controversy or issue that may arise between producers and distributors of food.

11.—Investigate the conduct and methods of exchanges and boards of trade within the state for the purchase and sale of food.

12.—Advise municipalities as to the establishment, organization and maintenance of local markets and terminal, dock and other distributing facilities for the sale, delivery and distribution of food, and the methods for conducting the business.

13.—Ascertain the quality, purity, wholesomeness, economic value and the nutritious and hygienic properties of food produced, sold, manufactured, stored, offered for sale or intended to be offered for sale within the state, and for such purpose to take, examine and analyze samples of such food.

14.—Investigate as to deceptions in the quality, quantity or character of foods produced, stored, sold or offered for sale within the state, including the use of dyes and coloring matter; and if any such deceptions constitute criminal violations, cause the necessary prosecution to be instituted.

15.—Co-operate with local health departments and departments of markets in preventing the production, manufacture, sale or offering for sale of fraudulent, deleterious or unwholesome food.

16.—Investigate and prevent unfair or illegal acts, practices and methods of competition in the sale or distribution of food or of fertilizers, feeding stuffs, materials, apparatus and machinery or other instrumentalities used or needed for the production, marketing or distribution of food, which are detrimental to the welfare of the people of the state.

17.—From time to time define what shall be deemed adulterated or unwholesome food or fraudulent practices in the sale of food and prohibit by rule the sale of such adulterated or unwholesome food in this state and prohibit by rule such fraudulent practices.

Under section 17, the rules of the commission are set forth. The commission may enact, amend and repeal rules which shall have the force and effect of law. Any violation may be declared to be a misdemeanor. Such rules shall

1.—Regulate and control the transaction of business by the commission and the department, provide for the exercise of the power and the performance of the duties of the department, the commission and the commissioners, and prescribe the powers and duties of the divisions of the department and of the deputies, directors and other officers and employes.

2.—Determine the policies of the state in respect to the production, sale, purchase, storage, marketing, distribution and other disposition of foods, with the view (a) of preventing unfair practices and methods in respect to foods and food traffic, collusive and fraudulent interference with the operation of economic principles governing supply and demand of foods, and the unreasonable, unjust or unauthorized regulation of prices of foods; and (b) promoting the interests of producers and consumers of such food by the reduction of the cost of marketing and distribution.

3.—Provide for carrying into effect the provisions of this chapter and of the laws, rules and policies of the state in respect to food and food traffic.

4.—Regulate the conduct of investigations, inquiries and hearings authorized by this chapter and prescribe necessary forms and notices.

5.—Regulate and control the grading, packing, handling, marketing, storage, sale and distribution of food.

6.—Provide for co-operation with and in aid of local authorities for the regulation of local and terminal markets, storage plants and distributing centers.

7.—Provide generally for the exercise of the powers and performance of the duties of the department as prescribed in this chapter, and for the enforcement of its provisions and the provisions of the rules enacted as herein provided.

No rules of the commission can be adopted or repealed without at least four affirmative votes.

The chairman of the commission, it is provided, shall act for the state in all its interstate relations and relations with foreign countries.

It is claimed by many persons that the present operations of the Dairymn's League are contrary to law. If this is so, it is designed by this bill to remove this suggestion and to permit of legitimate methods and operations of the league or other association of producers which are designed to bring a fair labor return to the farmer or dairyman. The measure provides, among other things, that the state through this agency may provide and ascertain in advance the costs of production and having studied those costs, machinery is provided by which the consumer may be made acquainted therewith, to the end that there is a mutual understanding of the cost factors involved. Adequate machinery is povided to regulate, so far as the constitution permits, the activities of middlemen and distributors, to the end that food products may be delivered to the consumer at their fair cost of production and distribution, affording only a reasonable return for labor and capital invested.

It is believed by the legislative committee that under the operations of this bill everything that was accomplished by he Dairymen's League in October, 1916, may be brought about without any charge of illegality and without the danger and perils of so-called strikes. However, it should be plainly understood that nothing is contained in this bill which affects individual action. The dairyman may do with his milk as he sees fit. The object of the measure is not to control or direct his actions, but to so aid and assist as to avoid acute conditions and suffering. There is no part of the bill which pemits price fixing on the part of the state or the state department, but it is believed that the bill will be an effectual aid to the establishment of reasonable prices both by market facilities and by making public accurate information upon the questions involved. The bill permits associations of producers and others to eliminate waste by agreement with the commission, which action is now prohibited by law, but in the event that any association avails itself of the license of the state, in return for that license the association is subjected to regulation by the department. No individual rights, as they now exist, are sacrificed. The rights of the individual trader remain as now, unaffected by the bill, but the producer and trader secures certain rights of association which are now prohibited to him and in return for which privilege he submits to certain regulation by the department. In the event of the refusal on the part of the trader to submit to such regulation, the license is taken away from him and he remains in the same condition and subject to the same laws as now.

It is believed that this method of dealing with the intricate questions involved will greatly aid the establishment of clean and permanent business conditions, encourage the production of foods of all kinds, provide a fair return for labor and capital invested in food production and distribution, prevent speculation and the fixing of exorbitant prices for food products and so far as laws are capable of so doing, reduce the cost of living. The investigation of the Wicks Committee disclosed many fraudulent and illegitimate practices existing in the distribution of fertilizers, dairy feeds and food products. These practices were such that the individual suffering from them was practically without remedy.

Taking each class of abuse by itself it does not appear so serious, but when all the classes are combined it at once appears that the multitude of little extortions and abuses become a great burden both to the consumer and the producer. The proposed new act is designed with adequate machinery to summarily correct and check trade fraud and abuses of all kinds. It will be perceived that the drafting of such a comprehensive bill is a work of no small magnitude. The best talent available has been devoted to this work during a great part of December. It may well be said that the bill in its present form is really an enlarged and more effective department of agriculture. The department, for the first time, will be provided with adequate resources and machinery to carry out the provisions of the present agricultural law. Both the commissioner of agriculture and the commissioner of foods and markets are endowed with more power and equipment than at present.

Complaints have been made as to the inactivity of the department of agriculture as it now exists in many directions. It is believed that this so-called failure of the department to act along remedial lines has been brought about by an absolute lack of both means and equipment to enforce the present law. This condition is remedied in the existing bill. There are very many problems connected with dairy products, live stock and poultry, and with the entire food traffic, which are of vital importance both to the producer and consumer, but as to which the state is without any machinery to aid or solve. The question of dairy scoring, butter fat tests, distribution of poultry products, distribution of milk, the production of all sorts of food is one of vital importance to the people of this state.

The bill provides a comprehensive department to study, regulate and control all these matters.

Relation of the Department to Business Men and Invested Capital.

It is recognized by this bill that the legislature is not only the guardian of the producer, but of the consumer and of all forms business. This bill lays no violent, destructive or reckless hand on individual business or enterprise. No honest business man need fear the provisions of this bill. The rogue may well oppose it as it is designed and equipped to prevent roguish and fraudulent operations of all kinds in connection with the food supply of the people of this state.

COMPANY M BOYS ENJOYING LIFE

Coats and Mittens Just the Thing for the Recent Spell of Weather—Gossipy Letter From the Boys on Guard Duty.

Ireland Corners, Feb. 14.—Ireland Corners is not so much like Ireland as we thought it would be, when old Sol. ran the weather down to 15 and 16 below zero. Anyway, we can all stand it. Those big mittens and sheepskin coats came in handy, though someone took a couple of pair for boxing gloves. The short coats, put on over the long ones, make it look like we have a dress on. "Well, how's the boys anyway?" I suppose everyone would like to know.

From Capt. Meagher to Corp Netter everyone is fine and happy.

Bill Meyers says the kitchen detail is all right, until it comes to washing enough dishes for a brigade.

Co. M has adopted a mascot, though he is a man. Name is Jack Johnston. Plays for us every night, never get mad until Private W. Lockwood starts his baby lullaby. Jack said, "I nearly swallowed my palate, trying to get that yodel down."

Everyone in Ireland Corners knows when Lockwood is hiking that big pipe line. His whistle is a merry one to hear two, three and four in the morning on that hike.

Cook Perry says his pies are like mother makes, but Rice says they don't beat his rice pudding, though we have to give them credit for their good eats.

Our patriotic schoolboy, Ed. Reiyea, says he wishes he could have seen that game that the high school lost, even if he wasn't in it.

Frank Sass says the captain does like the cool morning air. But riding through the country in a cutter is no business for a bugler.

Lance Corp. Keator, thought some wandering hobo, painted the steel of his rifle white, till he saw it was Jack Frost.

Private Salpaugh is the champion dish washer and wood chopper.

Private Britcliffe is getting used to the extra duty.

Matty Bence says there is no place like Auburn when it comes to army work. But he has the old and best way to keep warm in bed, with a hot brick at your feet.

Now, dear friends in Kingston, I will try and get a little more news in a couple of days. We all thank you for your kindness.

Armenia.

Armenia was the seat of an independent kingdom at different times long before the Christian era, though frequently at war, sometimes under foreign rule and with an unstable government. It was one of the first countries into which Christianity was introduced. There is no record of its frequent and repeated changes of government and rulers. For many years past it has been under Turkish rule.

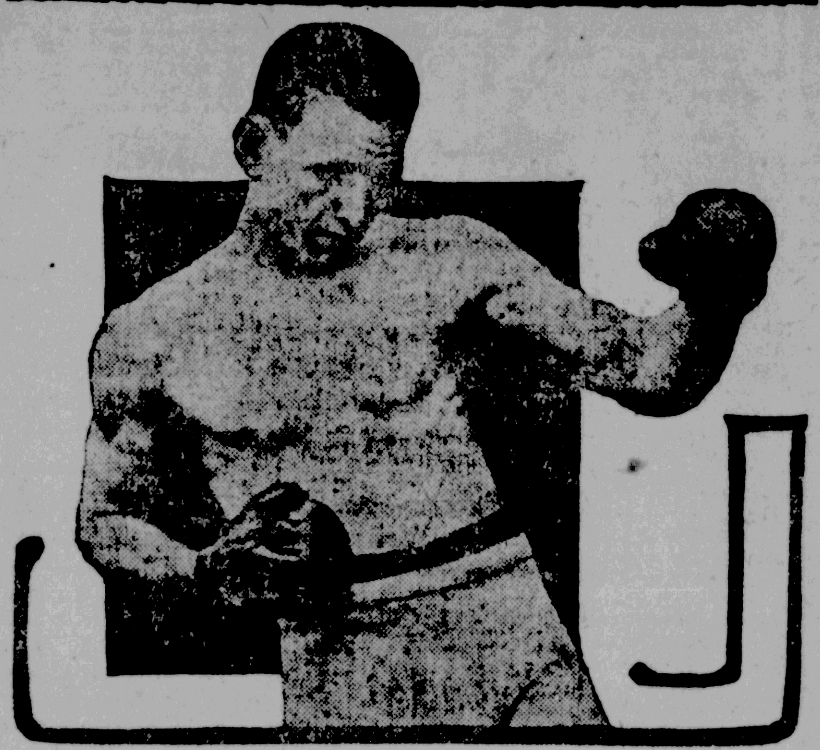
MISKE IS FIGHTER OF "EARLY DAY" KIND



BILLY MISKE IS REAL LOVER OF BOXING GAME.

In Billy Miske of St. Paul, conqueror of Charley Weinert and Jack Dillon within four days, the ring has a man who compares favorably with the boxers of an earlier day in that he is a real fighter and is in the game because he likes it rather than because of the gold to be derived from it.

Being perfectly sane, he of course demands a fair wage for his work, and in return he furnishes the best brand of fisticuffs of which he is capable on every occasion that he appears in the ring. It is this trait which singles him out from the ordinary run of present-day boxers and places him in a class with the old-timers.

It was while working in the shops of the Great Northern railroad in St. Paul with Mike and Tom Gibbons that Miske first conceived the idea of becoming a fighter. Miske says of himself:

"I was naturally a strong kid, my work as a mechanic and as a lineman for the telephone company having developed my muscles, and I could lick most of the fellows of my weight in our neighborhood. Then when Mike Gibbons became famous I decided I'd like to be a fighter, too. So I joined the Dreamland Athletic club in St. Paul and used to put on the gloves with the professionals who trained there and I soon picked up a slight knowledge of the game."

held down third base for the Toronto club of the International league. This team was managed by Joe Birmingham, formerly of Cleveland.

In one game Blackburne fumbled a grounder with a man on third base and failed to throw the ball home.

"You remind me of Johnny Evers," said Birmingham, recalling the famous incident of the world series between the Braves and Athletics when Evers' failure to throw home after making a fumble enabled Eddie Murphy to score from second base.

On the next play Blackburne tried to put out a runner. He held the ball between the base bag and the runner's foot and appealed to Umpire Kitty Bransfield for an out.

"Not out," said Bransfield. "You are pulling a Kid Gleason by pulling a runner's foot off the bag."

"That's pretty good," replied Blackburne, "to be called an Evers and a Gleason in the same inning."

HARD LIFE OF PROFESSIONAL

Outdoors All Day in Summer and During Winter They Are Forced to Leave Snowdrifts Behind.

Golf professionals lead the hardest life we know. In the summer they are outdoors all day in the open country. And in the winter they are forced to leave the snowdrifts and the smashing winds for such places as Palm Beach, Bellaire, Pinehurst, Augusta, St. Augustine, Ormond and Aiken, says New York Tribune. Yet we have never heard of a golf pros.' strike. Showing again that the Scot comes from a hardy race.

In the event of her non-acceptance of the offer, at the death of Mrs. Furguson, the sum of $50 is directed to be deposited in the New Paltz Savings Bank to the credit of the trustees of the Modena Rural Cemetery Association for the perpetual care of the testator's plot, and the balance expended in the purchase and erection of a monument over his grave. Proper Care of Rubbers.

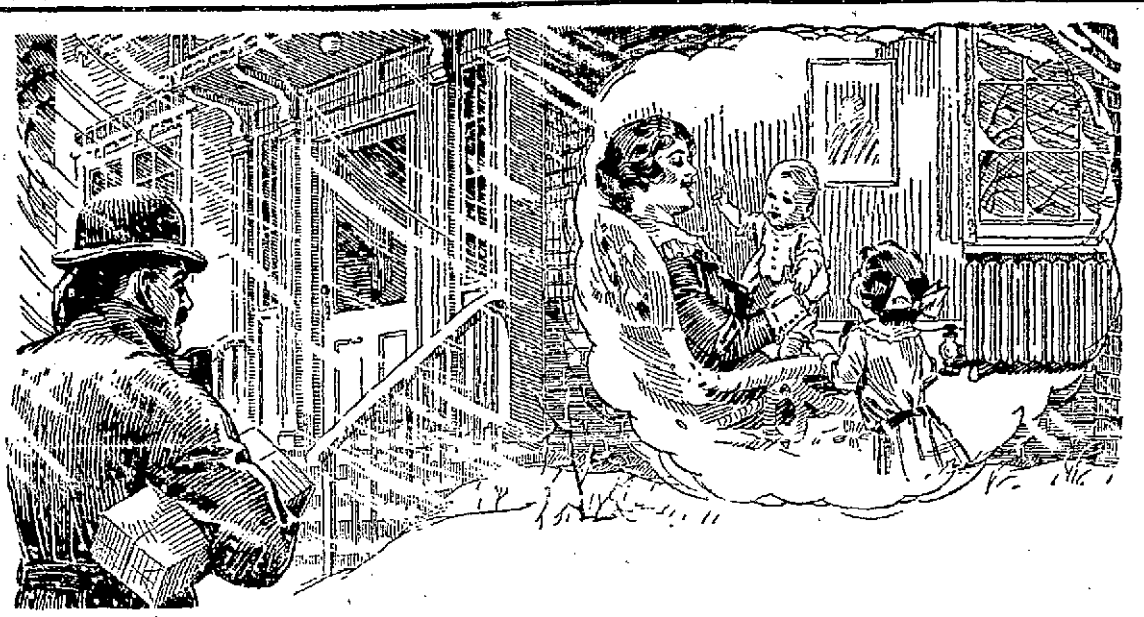
Rubbers should not be dried where it is too warm, nor should they be left caked with mud and dirt. When rubbers become faded and dingy, some people renew them by rubbing with vaseline. If this is done, it should be promptly rubbed off and the rubber polished dry, on account of the effect of the greasy substance. A quick polishing with a banana skin will renew the finish, for a time at least.



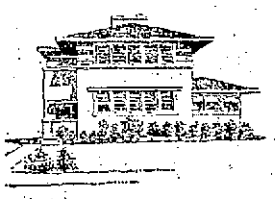
Stops Winter at your doorway!

How do you picture your home? Do you find the family handicapped by old-fashioned heating which makes them chill and fretful, or have you provided them with the IDEAL radiator warmth to work at best and then to rest in cheery contentment? If you want the utmost in heating comfort and economy, there's only one sure way—buy an outfit of

AMERICAN RADIATORS & IDEAL BOILERS

Get this life-long heating investment at once and stop all fuel waste!

In IDEAL Boilers and AMERICAN Radiators there are no parts to warp, bulge, unrivet, or loosen. These outfits have no known limit of endurance. Our name cast on each radiator and boiler is your guarantee. Accept no substitute. Enormous manufacture makes lowest price to consumer.



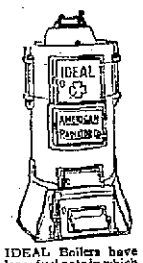
A No. 5-22-W IDEAL Boiler and 450 ft. of 38-in. AMERICAN Radiators costing the owner $305, were used to heat this cottage. At this price the goods can be bought of any reputable, competent Fitter. This did not include costs of labor, pipe, valves, freight, etc., which vary according to climatic and other conditions.

IDEAL heating is the utmost in comfort

IDEAL heating has proved this in a million buildings at home and abroad and as an investment it is permanent and will command full price even after the owner has enjoyed its comfort and savings for many years.

A little larger first investment over cost of a cheap heating equipment can be quickly overcome by omitting extra inner doors, chimneys, mantels, storm sash, weather strips, etc. You might better increase your borrowing at the bank, for the fuel and other savings that IDEAL heating will give you will make money for you far beyond the bank interest you have to pay.

To stop Winter from crossing your doorway, send for our (free) book "Ideal Heating," which gives most valuable information. Act now!



IDEAL Boilers have large fuel pots in which the air and coal gases thoroughly mix as in a modern gas or oil mantle or burner, thus extracting every bit of the heat from the fuel. Easier to run than a stove.

ARCO WAND Stationary Vacuum Cleaner—Guaranteed!

We also make the ARCO WAND Vacuum Cleaner, connected by an iron suction pipe to various floors of house, flat, school, hotel, etc. No dragging around a clumsy, inefficient portable cleaner—instead, you have a practical outfit that is a part of the building—like radiator heating. "What have you there?"

"A package of old love letters."

"Going to burn them?"

"Yes. When I wrote those missives they were so fervent I had an idea they might be ignited by spontaneous combustion, but I guess I'll have to use a match after all."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Ask and Learn.

Ordinarily the man who ceases to ask questions has ceased to learn. And when a man ceases to learn he grows complacent. Smugness sets in and he begins to deteriorate. The lack of curiosity in a man is a sign of age. You can be sure that you are getting old if you have lost curiosity. But old age (intellectually) comes on very early with some people and with others it never seems to come. Many old people have younger and more eager minds than their children.—American Magazine.

The Unlaid Eggs

The grain-fed hen usually carries a number of unlaid eggs—yolks which she cannot complete into eggs and lay, because her feed lacks the necessary white-forming nutrients. (That's why egg-yolks are found in a hen, when it is dressed). Many of these yolks of unfinished eggs are finally absorbed back into the hen's system.

Purina Scratch Feed	247.49 yolks	142.11 whites
Purina Chicken Chowder	182.05 "	282.55 "
Combined Ration	429.54 yolks	424.66 whites

These feeds, used in combination, form the most perfectly balanced and economical egg producer you can buy. Purina Chicken Chowder is the egg-completing ration; containing exactly the right feed elements to make the necessary whites. That's why we can positively guarantee

More eggs or money back

on Purina Chicken Chowder if fed with Purina Scratch Feed as directed. You take no risk. Write for further information and for our

Three Weeks.

The terms "calf week," "cow week" and "bull week" are applied in many of England's great industrial centers to the three weeks before the Christmas holiday week. In "calf week" the men work time and a third, in "cow week" time and two-thirds and in "bull week" double time in order to make up for loss of output caused by the Christmas holidays.

The Welsh Language.

Ruskin was once asked if it would not be well for the Welsh language to die out and be replaced by the English.

"God forbid!" he replied. "The Welsh language is the language of music. There is no genius about the English language. The Scotch have got all the poetry and the Irish all the wit, and how the mischief we got Shakespeare I do not know."

HABIT.

Habit, if wisely and skillfully formed, becomes truly a second nature, but unskillfully and unmethodically directed it will be the ape of nature, which imitates nothing to the life, but only clumsily and awkwardly.—Bacon.

Musician's Irony.

Most great conductors leave a good legacy of stories, but the Richter anecdotage is curiously thin, and, even so, most of it depends on his imperfect knowledge of the English language. Certainly the best thing told of him is his remark during a rehearsal of the prelude to "Tristan." "Not passionate enough," he said; "you play too much like married men."—London Observer.

CAUGHT GENOVA ON BINNEWATER TIP

Sheriff's Alarm Resulted in Information Upon Which Alleged Slayer of Emilio Dominicis Was Arrested at Walden—District Attorney's Office Investigating Case.

Rosaria Genova, the Italian barber of Tongore, who shot Emilio De Dominicis, known as James Brown, at that place Monday night, as the result of which the wounded man died at the Kingston City Hospital at 6 o'clock this morning, was brought to jail Tuesday evening by Under Sheriff Scott D. Hornbeck, who went after him in an automobile.

The sheriff's office was busy on the case all day Tuesday until after Genova had been captured by Chief of Police Ronk on a Wallkill Valley railroad train at Walden.

A statement of the shooting and description of Genova was telephoned from the sheriff's office to every deputy sheriff in the county, especially in the sections through which Genova would be compelled to pass in getting away from Tongore. The National Guardsmen along the line of the aqueduct and reservoir also were furnished with a description of the man.

On Tuesday afternoon Deputy Sheriff Charles Schipp, who conducts the Revere House at Binnewater, telephoned to Under Sheriff Hornbeck that he had learned of a man answering Genova's description who had been seen at Binnewater a short time before, and Under Sheriff Hornbeck immediately telephoned to Binnewater, where he learned that an Italian who answered the description of Genova had purchased a ticket for Walden.

A telephone message to Chief of Police Ronk of Walden notified him to be on guard for Genova, and through the courtesy of the officials of the Wallkill Valley railroad, the conductor of the train was instructed to notify the sheriff's office if the suspected passenger alighted at any other station, Under Sheriff Hornbeck taking this precauton to prevent the Italian's escape if he should try to elude pursuit in this way.

When the train reached Walden, Genova did not alight, and Chief Ronk boarded the train. The conductor pointed Genova out to the chief, who placed him under arrest. Genova did not appear excited. He admitted his identity and asked whether the man he shot was dead. He was held until the arrival of Under Sheriff Hornbeck, who brought him to Kingston by automobile.

Genova had little so say. Except for the statement that there had been an argument and that Brown had applied epithets to him, he had little to say. The revolver had been discharged twice, the first time at the ground to frighten Brown, and the second time pointed at him.

The revolver, a .38 calibre gun, was found in Genova's pocket. It contained two exploded shells.

Genova will remain in the jail until arrangements are made for his arraignment before a justice of the peace. Assistant District Attorney J. DePuy Hasbrouck and William P. Glass of the district attorney's office, who made an investigation of the case at Tongore on Tuesday, were again at Tongore this afternoon.

ODDS AND ENDS.

There will be a meeting of the tax payers association at Measter's Hall this evening at 8 o'clock.

The Parents-Teachers Association of school No. 1, will hold a special meeting on Thursday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the school. Special business will come up and every member is urged to be present.

A dance will be held at Imperial Inn, Albany, avenue extension, on Tuesday evening, February 20. Both the old fashioned dances and the modern steps will be danced. Murray's orchestra will furnish the music.

A special experience and testimony meeting will be held in the chapel of the Rondout Presbyterian Church on Thursday evening. New members will be received by the session at the close of the service. It is especially desired that all who have signed cards signifying their desire to become members of the church as well as all others who desire to do so be present at the service.

The Coming Fuel.

Because alcohol can be obtained from any growing thing, thus making its sources without limit, it will eventually take the place of gasoline as a fuel. One reason why it does not work well as a motor fuel today is that motors are not adapted to its use, and but one-half its real power is obtained when alcohol is used in an engine intended for gasoline.

SUBMARINE WORK LESS EFFECTIVE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Feb. 14.—Shipping circles here today were confident that the British Admiralty has found a way to circumvent Germany's unrestricted submarine warfare about the British Isles. Two big liners, both heavily laden with munitions, have slipped through the cordon and docked safely at Liverpool.

The Adriatic of the White Star Line reached Liverpool Monday, according to cable advices today. The Cunarder Carmania reached Liverpool this morning. Both sailed from New York several days after the submarine decree went into effect.

The Cunarder Carpathia reached New York today, the seventh British liner to make port in the last two days. She brought no passengers.

Humility.

Mental education has for its first and last step humility. But the humility will not be founded on comparison of ourselves with the imperfect standards around us, but on the increase of that internal knowledge which alone can make us aware of our internal wants.—Faraday.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Feb. 14.—Around noon a firmer tone was in evidence and issues generally sold materially above the initial levels. Business, however, was extremely dull. Steel Common rallied to 106¼, and good gains were made in other important shares. Money loaning at 2½ per cent.

There were irregular movements in a number of issues in the late afternoon. Mexican Petroleum declined to 85½, a loss of four points in all and American smelting 1⅝ to 96. Texas Company dropped from 217½ to 215. Central Leather rose 2¼ to 86 and Cuba Cane Sugar over a point to 37⅝.

The tone was heavy at the close. New Haven was the weak feature of the last hour, selling down a point to a new low record of 37½. Crucible Steel dropped a point to 63¾ and Union Pacific a point to 137¼. Steel Common closed steady at 105¾. Government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds irregular.

She Kissed the Waiter.

Two young women who had the table d'hote habit, sat alone tonight in a red-ink establishment in the Forties. "I was silly last night," moaned one. "I came in here and no one whom I can tolerate was here. I felt alone and resentful. I kissed Mike, the waiter." "Yvonne! Yvonne!" wailed her companion, "why did you do that?" "Bah!" sneered Yvonne. "I had tonsilitis."—New York Sun.

The Prospector's Daughter

By ESTHER VANDEVEER

A prospector of mines, down on his luck, built a shelter for himself and his daughter, Margery, in the cleft of a rock.

One morning the prospector started out to be gone till noon. He had been away a couple of hours when Margery, who was sewing by a square cut in the boards intended for a window, saw a man come running toward her. Catching sight of the strange abode, an idea seemed to strike him. Pulling open the door, he was about to enter when he saw Margery. He closed the door behind him and said excitedly:

"I'm hunted for my life. I want to hide here."

Without any further word he ran to the back of the cleft, which narrowed as it extended inward, and finally reached a place where it was only wide enough to admit his body. But it was dark there, and he had this one chance if followed.

"What are they after you for?" asked Margery.

"They mistook me for a horse thief."

Margery knew that the punishment for horse stealing was hanging, and she turned pale. But she resumed her seat at the window and her sewing. Then she cast her eye to where her father's rifle stood against the rock, and she got up from her seat, and, taking the gun to the window, laid it at her feet.

"They're coming," she said presently in a quiet voice. "Stay where you are. Mebbe I can stand 'em off till paw comes home."

"For heaven's sake do!" was the only response.

Four mounted men came riding toward the improvised shelter. They were about to pass on when one of them noticed it. He reined in his horse and pointed to it. Margery heard him say that it was a good hiding place. Then they all rode toward it. Margery knew that if they searched it they would discover the fugitive. Taking up the rifle, she leveled it out through the window and called out:

"Hold on, there!"

The man pulled up and, peering before him, saw a girl sitting behind the window.

"What you want?" asked Margery.

"We're after a hoss thief. Been any thing of him?"

"No; I haven't seen any hoss thief."

The men consulted together, then said to Margery, "We're sorry to trouble you, but we must have a look inside your—your domicile."

"I can't let you do that. I don't know who you are. You may want to steal somepin."

There was a burst of laughter at the suggestion that there was anything to steal. The men dismounted and were about to move toward the domicile when they heard the well known click of the cocking of a gun. They stopped short.

"Keep off," said Margery in a quiet voice.

The men looked at Margery, then at the face of the rock, then at one another.

"There's no gittin' in the rear," said one.

"No; there isn't," said another. "We've either got to go past the gal or keep out."

"It's my opinion he's there," said a third, "else she'd not be cuttin' these monkey shines. Say, little gal, you tell the feller that's hidin' behind your skirts to come out. We don't want to hurt you, but"—

Margery was not to be bluffed. She held the rifle to her shoulder, resting it on the window sill—or what served for one—and the men saw a pair of restless eyes taking in their slightest motion. Then they held another consultation, at the end of which they said to Margery that they were going to camp where they were and wait. This was not displeasing to Margery, for she expected her father would soon be back. Nevertheless she did not lower her rifle for a moment. The men settled themselves on the grass, filled their pipes and did what else they could to convince Margery that they would starve her out.

They had been there about twenty minutes when she saw her father standing at a distance surveying the scene. What interested him especially was his daughter covering the men before her humble home. He always carried a revolver on his tramps, and this time he had two. Suddenly the men heard behind them:

"Hands up, every one of you!"

Every pair of hands was raised. Then the prospector advanced, with a cocked revolver in each hand, while they were still also covered by Margery. Having been informed of the object of their visit, the prospector made an agreement with them that the stranger should stay where he was till the fact of his innocence or guilt could be determined. Then he was to be turned over to them or go free. The fugitive was called out and, being informed of the conditions, expressed himself satisfied, and all weapons were put aside. Turning to Margery, he said:

"You shall live in the handsomest house money can build. I own three-fourths the stock in the most profitable mine in these parts. You have saved my life and shall have your reward."

The young man's innocence was established, and he made good his words. Margery left her improvised residence and in time lived in the promised mansion. The man whose life she had saved lived there with her as her husband.

Faithful Women.

I tell you that women, as a rule, are more faithful than men—ten times more faithful. I never saw a man pursue his wife into the very ditch and dust of degradation and take her in his arms. I never saw a man stand at the shore where she was wrecked, waiting for the waves to bring back her corpse to his arms, but I have seen a woman with her white arms lift a man from the mire of degradation and hold him to her bosom as if he were an angel.—Ingersoll.

Tricky Dynamite.

"Perhaps nothing is more uncertain in the accident line than dynamite," said a dealer in the dangerous stuff. "You might drop a cartridge out of your hand and it would explode and tear your body to atoms. Another cartridge from the same case might be hurled from the top of a tall building and would land on the pavement like harmless wax, to be ground up under the wheels of heavy trucks and to be exploded with frightful havoc by the soft cushion tire of a bicycle."

Machine Works Fast.

An electrically-driven machine wraps lump sugar in individual papers at a speed of 7,500 lumps an hour.

A little sweet oil will remove finger prints from varnished furniture.

AN EFFICIENCY MEETING.

Western Union Employes Hold a Conference in Kingston.

Representatives of the Western Union Telegraph Company from Fleischmanns, Haines Falls, Cairo, Catskill, Leeds, Saugerties, Tannersville and Kingston participated in an educational and efficiency meeting at the local office of the company on John street, Tuesday evening.

Miss Rose Klein, manager of the Kingston office, who acted as chairman of the evening's session, made a very interesting address on up-to-date office routine, and J. E. Mendelson, commercial representative, from New York headquarters of the Western Union, pointed out to those present the numerous ways in which the company's services can be applied in a business and social way to the requirements of the public.

Similar gatherings are being held monthly by the Western Union in every important city of the United States and have for their purpose the training of all members of their organization so that they may become efficient "sellers" of the telegraph and that the wants of the public will be cared for in an intelligent and systematic manner. Those present were: Mrs. S. A. Hazen, manager, Saugerties; A. H. Alden, manager, Tannersville; Ivan Humphrey, Fleischmanns; E. A. Harvey, manager, Catskill; R. A. Austin, manager, Cairo; Wm. T. Keough, manager, Leeds; Mrs. C. A. Martin, manager, Haines Falls; J. E. Mendelson, commercial representative, New York city; and the following from Kingston, Miss Rose Klein, manager; Janice D. PRESIDENT MENOCAL'S PRESIDENT OF CUBS FACES REVOLT.

President Menocal.

Havana, Feb. 14.—President Menocal is facing a revolution among the troops of the Cuban army. Thirty men of the Eleventh and Eighth Infantry at Camp Columbia, near Marianao, revolted and escaped to the interior. They were joined by many former rebels and brigands, and it is feared will cause considerable trouble.

At Canas, in the province of Havana, similar uprisings occurred and heavy forces of troops believed to be loyal have been thrown around the National Palace here.

Fable.

Once upon a time there was a landlord who overlooked ye first of ye month.—Illinois State Journal.

The Turkey.

"Though a little vain and silly," the turkey," Franklin said, "is a native American and a bird of courage." Had he known more on the subject he would have added that the turkey is both wise and cleanly and is never vain or silly except during the mating season. Can more be said of any other bird—or man?

When Authors Write Best.

The time when an author may do his best work is a much-disputed question and an interesting one. It depends, of course, largely upon the moods and temperament of the individual, but perhaps more largely still upon his habits. The common belief of many authors, however, has been that their best work is done at night.

In Northern France.

It is strange and terrible to visit Paris—and no one can be happy—but to one who has loved France it is far worse to visit the lovely northern country. There is here a sense of emptiness, as if terror still hushed the normal cheerful noises of mankind. The people of these regions have lost everything. Their houses are burned; their animals, even the rabbits, are gone; their farm implements are shapeless pieces of grotesquely melted iron. They live in temporary, patched shelters and in the houses built by the Society of Friends or mass themselves in some nearby village that escaped destruction. After a time in this silent country one gets the sense that destruction is normal, and tears start to one's eyes at the sight of an undestroyed French village smiling in the sun. So changed are all values that I could feel nothing strange in the words of the woman who told me: "Fortunately my husband is a hunchback. He can't go to the war."—Mary Heaton Vorse in Century.

Abused Superlatives.

It is hard to make people understand that the adjective almost invariably weakens the noun and that the word "very," for instance, does not strengthen a statement, but qualifies it. But the use of the superlative is even more abused. We talk of the "unimpeachable" honesty of somebody or other, knowing perfectly well that anybody's honesty may be impeached. What seems to be required is a readjustment of our habits of thought and better teaching of the value of words and even of the usefulness of grammar. A superlative necessarily involves an axiom. It commits you, like saying that the sum of the angles of any triangle is equal to two right angles. Your dilemma arises when you try to prove it. "Impregnability" and "invulnerability" and all other superlatives in general use are posing as axioms when they are mostly fallacies.—Wall Street Journal.

Very Thoughtful.

Miss Askit—Did your husband smoke those cigars you gave him for his birthday? Mrs. Nuwed—He smoked one and said he would keep the rest to remind him of my kindness.

Contrariness of the Sex.

"How was it your wife came to give up housekeeping?"

"Just her contrary ways. First she broke down, and then she broke up."—Baltimore American.

MAY HAVE THEIR OWN LABORATORY

Health Board Appoints Committee to Consider Question of Using County Laboratory, Now Closed, or Equipping One at City Hall for Testing Milk—Other Matters.

The question of whether the board of health shall equip a small laboratory at the city hall for the purpose of testing milk, or whether an effort should be made to get in touch with the board of supervisors and see what arrangements could be made with regard to the board having the use of the county laboratory came up at the regular meeting of the board held on Tuesday afternoon at which time Dr. E. E. Norwood moved that the matter be referred to a committee to report back at the next monthly meeting in March. Mayor Canfield appointed as such a committee Commissioners McBride, Kaufman and Norwood.

The laboratory question was brought up at the meeting by Commissioner McBride who called attention to the fact that since the board of supervisors had refused to engage any bacteriologist to have charge of the county laboratory the place had been shut up. The health board had had all its milk tests made at the laboratory and were now shut off from keeping up such tests.

After some discussion it was brought out that the tests made at the county laboratory had been made in the past by Dr. Harold Clarke, the sanitary inspector of the board.

City Hall Laboratory.

The equipment needed to equip a small laboratory for the purpose of testing milk would not be very expensive it was stated. Dr. Clarke's opinion was asked in regard to whether there was any room in the city hall that could be used for laboratory purposes and he called the attention of the board to the third floor of the city hall where there was plenty of room for that purpose.

The entire question was finally referred to the committee mentioned.

If the board decides to equip a small laboratory it will be placed in charge of Dr. Clarke for the purpose of his testing milk taken from the various dealers as he has done in the past.

Nurse Wants Compensation.

Margaret Rieser of 520 Delaware avenue, a certified nurse, enclosed a claim for loss of two weeks time amounting to $36. In her claim she set forth that during the infantile paralysis epidemic she had been called to the house of Lafayette Moore at Samsonville where she nursed a patient who had the disease. She was quarantined in, and after being released came to Kingston to her home where she was notified by Dr. Johnston, the health officer, that she would not be allowed to do any nursing for two weeks, and it was for this two weeks she claims compensation for loss of time.

The board were of the impression that the health officer had done right in refusing to allow her to do any nursing as she had been caring for a case of the disease until two weeks had passed and she showed no symtons of having caught the disease herself, and referred the claim to the finance committee with instructions to disapprove the claim.

The Garbage Question.

Spring soon will be here for the old reliable harbinger of spring—the garbage question—came up for discussion at the meeting. It was first brought to life by the reading of an application from Charles A. Wood of Lucas turnpike, and Otto D., and John D. Short of Port Ewen, asking for permits to collect garbage.

Some time ago the board attempted to block off the city in squares and assign these private garbage collectors to a certain district, but this did not work. At the present time all garbage collectors must have permits from the board of health and be furnished with signs to place on their wagons.

After considerable discussion it was finally decided to take the matter up with the board of public works to consider the advisability of that latter board taking charge of the garbage question and that its collection come under the control of the B. P. W.

The permits asked for were granted subject to revocation at the pleasure of the board.

Those Present.

Mayor Canfield presided at the meeting which was attended by Commissioners Michael, McBride, Norwood, Huhne and Kaufman, and the officers of the board.

Officers' Reports.

The reports of the officers of the board were filed with the board and were as follows:

Kingston, N. Y., Feb. 1, 1917.
To the Honorable President and Members of the Board of Health of the City of Kingston.

I have the honor to submit to you my report for the month of January, 1917.

Contagious Diseases Reported.

	January 1917	January 1916
Diphtheria	6	10
Scarlet Fever	1	22
Tuberculosis	6	8
Whooping Cough	0	7
Chicken Pox	4	1
Total	17	48

The small number of contagious cases is very gratifying. That it may be kept in those limits is our earnest wish. In order that all cases may be taken care of at the onset we would urge that any suspicious case be held in quarantine by the physician until such time as it is reported to the health department. One of the chief sources of contagion is that spread by the other school children in contact with a case just previous to its diagnosis. The state code provides for isolation of such persons of contact and their later return to school, without being quarantined for the full period. This is graphically illustrated in the latest chart from the state department of health which we have on view here in the office.

Beginning this month the new amendments to the Child Labor Law are in effect. Briefly these amendments restrict further the night messenger trade and also some of the mercantile work. It also raises the educational requirements which an applicant must attain before an employment certificate may be issued. The law provides that in addition to having attended school not less than one hundred and thirty days previous to the application, those children of fourteen years but not yet fifteen, must also show satisfatory evidence that they have graduated from a grammar school. Those applicants who are fifteen may still obtain an employment certificate under the same rules as at present.

The national child labor committee offered a very interesting exhibit the last three days of January. By their pictures and pamphlets they showed convincingly how great a work has been accomplished and what further aims they yet have for future welfare work. New York state is among the foremost in its care of its children.

Fifteen milk applications have been received this past month and the permits issued. Since farms have been scored within the past six months, this may be done and thus the delay of previous years overcome.

Respectfully submitted.

BRUNETTES 24 BLONDES 14

The flaxen haired lassies of Kingston high school went down in defeat before the brunette team in a fast game in the school gymnasium yesterday afternoon.

In the first quarter both teams retained the goose egg with which the game commenced. At half time the brunettes had eight points as compared with their opponents six. Later in the third quarter the blondes took a brace and came near having a safe lead but during the last period of the game the swarthy crew ran away with the ball and when the play ended had twenty-four points while their opponents had only fourteen. No points were made from foul baskets and only two were called during the whole game.

Both teams played a fine game. The blondes had the advantage of having nearly all the forwards in the school on their side while the victors could boast of nearly all the guards.

A larger attendance and more enthusiasm was manifested at this game between two home teams than is usually produced for an interschool game. The teams were made up as shown in the following table:

Junior-Senior Game.

This afternoon the juniors and the seniors are scheduled to meet in basketball. Neither team of boys have had any practice and a good rough and ready game, at which a big part of the school will be present, is expected. Varsity men are barred from these interclass games, and both teams will lose some good support because of this customary ruling.

Iseman Leases Gillen Store.

Robert Iseman, son of William Iseman the cigar manufacturer on Broadway, has leased the tobacco and cigar store in the Opera House building formerly conducted by John B. Gillen and will open the store as soon as cleaning and alterations can be finished. Mr. Iseman will probably be open for business by the last of the week and will handle the well known brands of goods manufactured by his father and will conduct a retail and wholesale business. The stock and fixtures were sold on Tuesday by Andrew J. Cook, trustee in bankruptcy to Mr. Iseman for $505 after an effort to sell by parcels brought bids totaling only $238.50.

In other words, Fatimas would not be sensible if they ever bothered your throat or tongue; or if they didn't leave you feeling all right even after smoking more than usual.

Fatima Cigarettes never disturb. They can't. The milder tobaccos in their Turkish blend are in such perfect balance with the richer, fuller-flavored leaves as to off-set entirely all of that uncomfortable "oily heaviness" found in so many other cigarettes.

RED CROSS BRANCH IN SAUGERTIES

In response to an invitation received last week from the women of Saugerties, represented by Mrs. Howard Gillespy, Mrs. C. N. Reed, chairman of the Ulster County Chapter of the Red Cross, Mrs. George Chandler, assistant chairman, and Mrs. W. N. Fessenden, secretary, visited Saugerties on Tuesday afternoon and assisted in the forming of a Saugerties Auxiliary of the Ulster County Chapter of the Red Cross. The meeting was held in the village library, which is a most up-to-date and attractive building, admirably equipped, and where is housed the remarkable geological collection of the Rev. Mr. Cole. The platform of the meeting room was adorned with a beautiful silk flag surmounted with a gold eagle. Some fifty or more of the women of Saugerties were present at the meeting and all were desirous of doing what they could for their country.

Mrs. Howard Gillespy was made temporary chairman, with Mrs Byron Davis as temporary secretary. In response to the request that the women of Kingston tell what joining the Red Cross would mean, the work required, and other details of organizing an Auxiliary, Mrs. Fessenden gave a brief outline of the history of the American Red Cross, showing the neutrality of the organization its growth and efficiency as an aid to the government in times of peace and war. Mrs. Reed gave a more specific account of how to form the Auxiliary, the various activities which an Auxiliary might enter into, and also explained the manner in which the financial matters of the Red Cross are carried on. Mrs Chandler, after relating the story of a visit of Major Chandler to Saugerties, in which he was to speak, with its most amusing incidents, which quite enlivened the meeting, told of the First Aid Work, and dwelt upon the immediate desirability of increased membership.

After the Kingston women had spoken, Mrs. Gillespy put the question of whether or no those present wished to form a Red Cross Auxiliary, to vote, and it was unanimously voted that such an Auxiliary should be formed. Officers were therefore, promptly elected as follows: Chairman, Mrs. Kaufmann; vice chairman, Mrs. Emerick, Mrs John Fellows, Miss Sarah Curley, Mrs. William Sickles, Miss Edna Martin and Miss Carrie Kleeber, each representing a church in the village; secretary, Miss Helen Davis.

A communication was received from Snyder Hose Company, of the village, offering the use of their rooms for the women to work in, provided they should organize, and the secretary was authorized to acknowledge the communication with thanks and acceptance of the generous offer. Miss Barrett, whose store occupies a prominent place in the business section of the community, also offered the use of her store as a receiving station for materials or other such supplies as should have to be gathered together and this offer was accepted gratefully. Word was received from Mrs. John Washburn stating that she would do all in her power to interest the Camp Fire Girls in the work, and a representative of the Saugerties D. A. R. stated that that organization would assist in the work. Before the meeting adjourned it was decided that the auxiliary should meet weekly as soon as completely organized, and the suggestion was made that certain days and place should be given out each week for the enrollment of members.

The majority of those present became Red Cross members during the afternoon while others signified their intention of helping in any work taken up, even if they might not be able to join. During the meeting two exceptionally excellent addresses were delivered by the Rev. Mr. Wemple and the Rev. Mr Turrentine on the international situation of this country and the world problems of today. Mrs Reed also, after the formation of the Saugerties Auxiliary, heartily thanked the women of Saugerties for the assistance given the country through their joining actively in the Red Cross work. The meeting was brought to a close with the singing by all standing of "America," and the Saugerties Auxiliary of the Ulster County Chapter of the Red Cross adjourned until called for its next meeting by the chair.

Think of These Things.

When thou wishest to delight thyself, think of the virtues of those who live with thee; for instance, the activity of one, and the modesty of another, and the liberality of a third, and some other good quality of a fourth. For nothing delights so much as the examples of the virtues, when they are exhibited in the morals of those who live with us and present themselves in abundance, as far as is possible. Wherefore we must keep them before us.—Marcus Aurelius.

Surely a Thick Fog.

Some ancient mariners were sitting in a seaport tavern relating their experiences of fogs. "Ah!" said one old salt, "I've seen some pretty thick fogs in my time. Why, off the coast of Newfoundland the fog was sometimes so thick that we used to sit on the deck-rail and lean against it! We were sitting one night as usual, with our backs to the fog, when suddenly it lifted, and we all went flop into the sea. A bit thick, wasn't it?"

Sandcrabs for Chickens.

The owner of a chicken ranch in California feeds his fowls on sandcrabs. These he catches in a trap which Popular Mechanics describes as like a large dustpan with a wire screen bottom. He often gets as much as a peck of crabs at a time. He boils them, dries them in the sun and grinds them to a coarse meal. The chickens grow fat and lay well on this diet.

An Episode In Petrograd

By ELINOR MARSH

Billy Oglethorpe was in a casino in Petrograd where the high dignitaries of the capital were wont to "buck the tiger," and, since he had unlimited means, he won a pile of money. Sitting opposite him at the table was a very pretty woman, who was observant of Billy's winnings. Presently she said something to a man sitting near her. He arose and went out. After awhile he returned and whispered something in the lady's ear which appeared to agitate her profoundly. Then came two men who touched the lady on the shoulder. With despair written on her countenance she arose and was about to accompany the men from the casino when she turned and cast an imploring glance at the American. Then she turned and went out with the men.

Billy hurriedly scooped together the pile before him and followed her. At the door the men put her into a carriage and before getting in themselves slipped a pair of handcuffs on her. She had just time to give Billy one appealing look when the carriage was driven away. Billy called a cab and, slipping a handful of rubles into the coachman's palm, told him to follow the carriage and on no account let it get out of his sight. Then he got in the cab.

The carriage drew up before a house that might have been a dwelling or might have contained offices. The lady was taken from the carriage and escorted between the two men into the building and the door was shut behind them.

The young American was uncertain what next to do. The Russian revolution was then on and many arrests were being made. Quite likely the lady was a revolutionist. Billy accounted for the circumstances attending her arrest as follows. While she was watching Billy win money she had been casting furtive glances at the entrance of the casino. Doubtless she was fearing arrest. She had sent the person with her out to see if there was danger. He had returned and informed her that government officials were without. This accounted for her agitation. Such was this very natural explanation of what had occurred, and Billy was satisfied with it.

He did not see that he could do anything in the matter until the next day. So he went to his hotel and to bed. But slumber did not come. He was haunted by that appealing look.

The next morning he went to the house where the woman had been taken and stood looking at it for some time. Presently the object of his interest came to a window. Billy was standing where she could not very well help noticing him. When their gaze met she gave him that same imploring look. Billy pointed to the door, meaning "Shall I enter the house?" The woman shook her head, meaning "No." Then she went away from the window, but soon returned and, folding a bit of paper, she raised the sash and dropped it on the sidewalk below. Billy crossed the street, strolled past the house and, as he did so, stooped and picked up the paper, which he read.

He was informed that the writer was implicated in the revolution and would be sent to Siberia. She would much rather be executed, she said, for not even death could be as horrible as Siberian exile. The missive closed with this statement: "Only one thing can save me—money. The police may be bribed, but, alas, it would require an enormous sum to tempt them!"

If money would save her she was as good as saved, for money was nothing to Billy. He had heard that graft pervaded all officials in Russia and was not surprised at the lady's statement. Taking his winnings of the night before, more than 50,000 rubles ($25,000), he marched boldly up to the house where the captive was held and rang the bell. The summons was answered by one of the men who had arrested the lady. Billy tipped him the wink and was admitted. Then he said that he would pay a large price for the freedom of the prisoner. The man listened without reply till Billy offered 50,000 rubles. The man said that he must divide with many others and the sum would not go around. Billy finally closed with him for 80,000 rubles.

It was arranged that Billy was to call for the prisoner that evening in a closed carriage. She would be released, and he would pay the money. At the hour appointed Billy called. The lady, veiled, appeared at the door and, accompanied by one of her captors, went to the carriage. She raised her veil so that Billy could see her face, and Billy handed the man a roll of bills. Then the pair were driven away.

The lady's gratitude was Billy's reward. She asked to be taken to a house, where she would remain concealed till she could escape from Russia. Billy was granted permission to go there to see her the next day.

Billy made the call, but did not gain admittance. He surmised that the lady had found it expedient to change her quarters.

He did not see her again for several years. Meanwhile he had been to America and various other countries. His second meeting with her was in the Casino at Petrograd. She was betting high. Billy asked who she was. The person he asked replied with a shrug of the shoulders.

Billy concluded that he had been victimized.

Frightful Friends.

The friend who welcomes you by creeping up behind and knocking off your hat.

The friend who invites you to the theater and buys only one ticket.

The friend who introduces you to Miss Wallflower and then disappears.

The friend you ask to dinner on Saturday and who stays over the week end.

The friend who drops in to talk over old times and incidentally borrows all your spare cash.

The friend who insists that you visit him and continually quarrels with his wife.

The friend who telephones you in the middle of the night that he's been arrested.—Life.

Seen on an Ostrich Farm.

It is no uncommon thing to see a male ostrich strutting about followed by three or four distinct broods, all of different sizes. When the incubating process is completed the cock bird leads his young ones off and, if he meets another proud papa, engages in a terrific combat with him. The vanquished bird retires without a single chick, while the other, surrounded by the two broods, walks away triumphantly.

Just a Precaution.

"So you are attending cooking school?" said the friend. "Are you going to do your own work after you are married?"

"No; I want to be able to teach my husband how to prepare the meals in an emergency."

Too Much.

Doctor—Have you tried counting up to 100? Insomnia Patient—Yes, but at forty I remember that's the amount of your bill, and at eighty my wife's new gown gets my goat!—Exchange.

PLAN FOR A STATE FOOD COMMISSION

New Legislation Designed to Benefit Consumer, Producer and Business Men and for the Elimination of Fraud and Waste—Commissioners to Serve Without Pay

Following six months investigation in both the rural sections and the cities of this state from both a producers and a consumers stand point the Wicks Joint legislative committee has completed a draft of the food and markets bill which it is hoped may eventually benefit both producers and consumers The bill will be introduced in both houses this week In its printed form the bill covers approximately 200 pages A very complete synopsis is given below The proposed act creates a food commission and will probably be entitled An act in relation to agriculture food and markets

1—Discrimination between communities or residents of different communities

2—Attempting to restrain any person from procuring an article of food from another person by requiring an agreement that he will not so procure it or by making some discrimination in the compensation to be paid etc

Twelve additional unfair practices are enumerated which are designed to make the markets of the state free to everyone

The bill by section 4 declares that the production manufacturing marketing and distribution of food and of all the instrumentalities therein is a matter of public interest and a proper object for investigation encouragement development and regulation by the state in order to protect the health of the citizen and to provide an abundant supply of pure and wholesome food to prevent frauds and oppressions in the traffic therein and to eliminate waste and loss in the distribution thereof

Article provides there shall be a department of agriculture foods and markets the head of which shall be the commissioner of agriculture foods and markets The commission shall consist of the chairman of the public service commission of the second district the commissioner of public markets of the city of New York ex-officio and without salary from the state five commissioners, appointed by the governor subject to confirmation by the senate

The first five commissioners shall consist of the commissioner of agriculture now in office who shall continue to be known as the commissioner of agriculture foods and markets now in office who shall during his term be known as the commissioner of markets and three additional commissioners appointed by the governor

At least three of the appointive commissioners shall be representatives of the dairy and agricultural interests of the state The offices of the department shall be at Albany The present department of agriculture is taken over and continued as a whole and the present provisions of the agricultural law with certain amendments amplifying its powers are written into the new statute

All the present officers and employes of existing departments are transferred to the new department without change or loss of standing under the civil service requirements or otherwise Certain activities of the board of health are transferred to the new department The bureau of weights and measures is transferred in toto with all its employes of the new department who continue in their present office subject hereafter to the direction and control of the commission It is believed that by combining these departments ultimately money will be saved to the state Only one set of state inspectors will be in the field responsible to one department It is believed that the duties of these employes can be so consolidated as to result in improved service to the state

As these commissioners are vested with extensive powers and duties such as will require the entire time and attention of the five appointive members the salaries to be provided will be sufficient to procure suitable men but will probably be considerably less in amount than is now paid to the public service commissioners

The salaries to be paid remains to be adjusted by the legislature

Some of the general powers and duties of the commissioner are as follows

1—Execute the laws in relation to agriculture and agricultural products and cause to be carried into effect the provisions of this chapter and the rules of the commission

No rules of the commission can be adopted or repealed without at least four affirmative votes

The chairman of the commission it is provided shall act for the state in all its interstate relations and relations with foreign countries

It is claimed by many persons that the present operations of the Dairymens League are contrary to law If this is so it is designed by this bill to remove this suggestion and to permit of legitimate methods and operations of the league or other association of producers which are designed to bring a fair labor return to the farmer or dairyman The measure provide among other things that the state through this agency may provide and ascertain in advance the costs of production and having studied those costs machinery is provided by which the consumer may be made acquainted therewith to the end that there is a mutual understanding of the cost factors involved Adequate machinery is provided to regulate so far as the constitution permits the activities of middlemen and distributors to the end that food products may be delivered to the consumer at their fair cost of production and distribution affording only a reasonable return for labor and capital invested

It is believed by the legislative committee that under the operations of this bill everything that was accomplished by the Dairymens League in October 1916 may be brought about without any change of illegality and without the danger and perils of so called strikes How ever it should be plainly understood that nothing is contained in this bill which affects individual action The dairyman may do with his milk as he sees fit The object of the measure is not to control or direct his actions but to aid and assist as to avoid acute conditions and suffering There is no part of the bill which permits price fixing on the part of the state or the state department, but it is believed that the bill will be an effectual aid to the establishment of reasonable prices both by market facilities and by making public accurate information upon the questions involved The bill permits associations of producers and others to eliminate waste by agreement with the commission which action is now prohibited by law, but in the event that any association avails itself of the license of the state in return for that license the association is subjected to regulation by the department. No individual rights as they now exist are sacrificed The rights of the individual trader remain as now unaffected by the bill but the producer and trader secures certain rights of association which are now prohibited to him and in return for which privilege he submits to certain regulation by the department In the event of the refusal on the part of the trader to submit to such regulation the license is taken away from him and he remains in the same condition and subject to the same laws as now

It is believed that this method of dealing with the intricate questions involved will greatly aid the establishment of even and permanent business conditions encourage the production of foods of all kinds provide a fair return for labor and capital invested in food production and distribution prevent speculation and the fixing of exorbitant prices for food products and so far as laws are capable of so doing reduce the cost of living The investigation of the Wicks Committee disclosed many fraudulent and illegitimate practices existing in the distribution of fertilizers dairy feeds and food products These practices were such that the individual suffering from them was practically without remedy

Taking each class of abuse by itself it does not appear so serious but when all the classes are combined it at once appears that the multitude of little extortions and abuses become a great burden both to the consumer and the producer The proposed new act is designed with adequate machinery to summarily correct and check trade fraud and abuses of all kinds It will be perceived that the drafting of such a comprehensive bill is a work of no small magnitude The best talent available has been devoted to this work during a great part of December It may well be said that the bill in its present form is really an enlarged and more effective department of agriculture The department for the first time will be provided with adequate resources and machinery to carry out the provisions of the present agricultural law Both the commissioner of agriculture and the commissioner of foods and markets are endowed with more power and equipment than at present.

Complaints have been made as to the inactivity of the department of agriculture as it now exists in many directions It is believed that this so-called failure of the department to act along remedial lines has been brought about by an absolute lack of both means and equipment to enforce the present law This condition is remedied in the existing bill There are very many problems connected with dairy products live stock and poultry and with the entire food traffic which are of vital importance both to the producer and consumer out of to which the state is without any machinery to aid or solve The question of dairy scoring butter fat tests, distribution of poultry products distribution of milk the production of all sorts of food is one of vital importance to the people of this state

Relation of the Department to Business Men and Invested Capital

It is recognized by this bill that the legislature is not only the guardian of the producer but of the consumer and of all forms business This bill lays no violent destructive or reckless hand on individual business or enterprise No honest business man need fear the provisions of this bill The rogue may well oppose it as it is designed and equipped to prevent roguish and fraudulent operations of all kinds in connection with the food supply of the people of this state

COMPANY M BOYS ENJOYING LIFE

Suits and Mittens Just the Thing for the Recent Spell of Weather—Gossipy Letter From the Boys on Guard Duty.

Ireland Corners, Feb. 14.—Ireland Corners is not so much like Ireland as we thought it would be, when old Sol. ran the weather down to 15 and 16 below zero. Anyway, we can all stand it. Those big mittens and sheepskin coats came in handy, though someone took a couple of pair for boxing gloves. The short coats, put on over the long ones, make it look like we have a dress on. "Well, how's the boys anyway?" I suppose everyone would like to know.

From Capt. Meagher to Corp Netter everyone is fine and happy.

Bill Meyers says the kitchen detail is all right, until it comes to washing enough dishes for a brigade.

Co. M has adopted a mascot, though he is a man. Name is Jack Johnston. Plays for us every night, never get mad until Private W. Lockwood starts his baby lullaby. Jack said, "I nearly swallowed my palate, trying to get that yodel down."

Everyone in Ireland Corners knows when Lockwood is hiking that big pipe line. His whistle is a merry one to hear two, three and four in the morning on that hike.

Cook Perry says his pies are like mother makes, but Rice says they don't beat his rice pudding; though we have to give them credit for their good eats.

Our patriotic schoolboy, Ed. Relyea, says he wishes he could have seen that game that the high school lost, even if he wasn't in it.

Frank Sass says the captain does like the cool morning air. But riding through the country in a cutter is no business for a bugler.

Lance Corp. Keator, thought some wandering hobo, painted the steel of his rifle white, till he saw it was Jack Frost.

Private Britcliffe is getting used to the extra duty.

Matty Bence says there is no place like Auburn when it comes to army work. But he has the old and best way to keep warm in bed, with a hot brick at your feet.

Now, dear friends in Kingston, I will try and get a little more news in a couple of days. We all thank you for your kindness.

Armenia.

Armenia was the seat of an independent kingdom at different times long before the Christian era, though frequently at war, sometimes under foreign rule and with an unstable government. It was one of the first countries into which Christianity was introduced. There is no record of its frequent and repeated changes of government and rulers. For many years past it has been under Turkish rule.

MISKE IS FIGHTER OF "EARLY DAY" KIND

BILLY MISKE IS REAL LOVER OF BOXING GAME.

In Billy Miske of St. Paul, conqueror of Charley Weinert and Jack Dillon within four days, the ring has a man who compares favorably with the boxers of an earlier day in that he is a real fighter and is in the game because he likes it rather than because of the gold to be derived from it.

Being perfectly sane, he of course demands a fair wage for his work, and in return he furnishes the best brand of fisticuffs of which he is capable on every occasion that he appears in the ring. It is this trait which singles him out from the ordinary run of present-day boxers and places him in a class with the old-timers.

It was while working in the shops of the Great Northern railroad in St. Paul with Mike and Tom Gibbons that Miske first conceived the idea of becoming a fighter. Miske says of himself:

"I was naturally a strong kid, my work as a mechanic and as a lineman for the telephone company having developed my muscles, and I could lick most of the fellows of my weight in our neighborhood. Then when Mike Gibbons became famous I decided I'd like to be a fighter, too. So I joined the Dreamland Athletic club in St. Paul and used to put on the gloves with the professionals who trained there and I soon picked up a slight knowledge of the game."

CALLED EVERS AND GLEASON

Russell Blackburne Makes Two Queer Plays in One Inning—Called by Manager and Umpire.

They are telling a good story on Russell Blackburne, the former Chicago White Sox infielder, who last year held down third base for the Toronto club of the International league. This team was managed by Joe Birmingham, formerly of Cleveland.

In one game Blackburne fumbled a grounder with a man on third base and failed to throw the ball home.

"You remind me of Johnny Evers," said Birmingham, recalling the famous incident of the world series between the Braves and Athletics when Evers' failure to throw home after making a fumble enabled Eddie Murphy to score from second base.

On the next play Blackburne tried to put out a runner. He held the ball between the base bag and the runner's foot and appealed to Umpire Kitty Bransfield for an out.

"Not out," said Bransfield. "You are pulling a Kid Gleason by pulling a runner's foot off the bag."

"That's pretty good," replied Blackburne, "to be called an Evers and a Gleason in the same inning."

HARD LIFE OF PROFESSIONAL

Outdoors All Day In Summer and During Winter They Are Forced to Leave Snowdrifts Behind.

Golf professionals lead the hardest life we know. In the summer they are outdoors all day in the open country. And in the winter they are forced to leave the snowdrifts and the smashing winds for such places as Palm Beach, Bellaire, Pinehurst, Augusta, St. Augustine, Ormond and Aiken, says New York Tribune. Yet we have never heard of a golf pros.' strike. Showing again that the Scot comes from a hardy race.

SOUTH RONDOUT

South Rondout, Feb. 14. At the fourth quarterly conference on Saturday night our pastor, Rev. John Anthony requested to be removed this spring, although he has done a good work the past three years he has been here. He thinks it is best to go although the majority of the people would like to have him back. The church has never been in so prosperous a condition financially as it is now. He has organized a Bible Class, something we never had before and we hope his successor will take up the good work that he will leave.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Becker and daughter Cressie of Sleightsburgh attended the concert by E. B. Philip in the church on Monday night.

Mrs. Clifford Hicks is ill at her home. Dr Ross is the attending physician

A GREAT SHOE SALE

BUY YOUR SHOES NOW!

Three Weeks.

The terms "calf week," "cow week" and "bull week" are applied in many of England's great industrial centers to the three weeks before the Christmas holiday week. In "calf week" the men work time and a third, in "cow week" time and two thirds and in "bull week" double time in order to make up for loss of output caused by the Christmas holidays.

The Welsh Language.

Ruskin was once asked if it would not be well for the Welsh language to die out and be replaced by the English.

"God forbid!" he replied. "The Welsh language is the language of music. There is no genius about the English language. The Scotch have got all the poetry and the Irish all the wit, and how the mischief we got Shakespeare I do not know."

HABIT.

Habit, if wisely and skillfully formed, becomes truly a second nature, but unskillfully and unmethodically directed it will be the ape of nature, which imitates nothing to the life, but only clumsily and awkwardly.—Bacon.

Musician's Irony.

Most great conductors leave a good legacy of stories, but the Richter anecdotage is curiously thin, and, even so, most of it depends on his imperfect knowledge of the English language. Certainly the best thing told of him is his remark during a rehearsal of the prelude to "Tristan." "Not passionate enough," he said; "you play too much like married men."—London Observer.

ADVERTISEMENT WRITING.

ADVERTISERS who expect to win success must "stick to the game like a barnacle on a boat's bottom." But they should remember that the public is tired of "Gigantic Sales at Astounding Prices." CAUGHT GENOVA ON BINNEWATER TIP

Sheriff's Alarm Resulted in Information Upon Which Alleged Slayer of Emilio Dominicis Was Arrested at Walden—District Attorney's Office Investigating Case.

Rosaria Genova, the Italian barber of Tongore, who shot Emilio De Dominicis, known as James Brown, at that place Monday night, as the result of which the wounded man died at the Kingston City Hospital at 6 o'clock this morning, was brought to jail Tuesday evening by Under Sheriff Scott D. Hornbeck, who went after him in an automobile.

The sheriff's office was busy on the case all day Tuesday until after Genova had been captured by Chief of Police Ronk on a Wallkill Valley railroad train at Walden.

A statement of the shooting and description of Genova was telephoned from the sheriff's office to every deputy sheriff in the county, especially in the sections through which Genova would be compelled to pass in getting away from Tongore. The National Guardsmen along the line of the aqueduct and reservoir also were furnished with a description of the man.

On Tuesday afternoon Deputy Sheriff Charles Schipp, who conducts the Revere House at Binnewater, telephoned to Under Sheriff Hornbeck that he had learned of a man answering Genova's description who had been seen at Binnewater a short time before, and Under Sheriff Hornbeck immediately telephoned to Binnewater, where he learned that an Italian who answered the description of Genova had purchased a ticket for Walden.

A telephone message to Chief of Police Ronk of Walden notified him to be on guard for Genova, and through the courtesy of the officials of the Wallkill Valley railroad, the conductor of the train was instructed to notify the sheriff's office if the suspected passenger alighted at any other station, Under Sheriff Hornbeck taking this precaution to prevent the Italian's escape if he should try to elude pursuit in this way.

When the train reached Walden, Genova did not alight, and Chief Ronk boarded the train. The conductor pointed Genova out to the chief, who placed him under arrest. Genova did not appear excited. He admitted his identity and asked whether the man he shot was dead. He was held until the arrival of Under Sheriff Hornbeck, who brought him to Kingston by automobile.

Genova had little so say. Except for the statement that there had been an argument and that Brown had applied epithets to him, he had little to say. The revolver had been discharged twice, the first time at the ground to frighten Brown, and the second time pointed at him.

The revolver, a .38 calibre gun, was found in Genova's pocket. It contained two exploded shells.

Genova will remain in the jail until arrangements are made for his arraignment before a justice of the peace. Assistant District Attorney J. DePuy Hasbrouck and William P. Glass of the district attorney's office, who made an investigation of the case at Tongore on Tuesday, were again at Tongore this afternoon.

ODDS AND ENDS.

There will be a meeting of the tax payers association at Measter's Hall this evening at 8 o'clock.

The Parents-Teachers Association of school No. 1, will hold a special meeting on Thursday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the school. Special business will come up and every member is urged to be present.

A dance will be held at Imperial Inn, Albany avenue extension, on Tuesday evening, February 20. Both the old fashioned dances and the modern steps will be danced. Murray's orchestra will furnish the music.

A special experience and testimony meeting will be held in the chapel of the Rondout Presbyterian Church on Thursday evening. New members will be received by the session at the close of the service. It is especially desired that all who have signed cards signifying their desire to become members of the church as well as all others who desire to do so be present at the service.

The Coming Fuel.

Because alcohol can be obtained from any growing thing, thus making its sources without limit, it will eventually take the place of gasoline as a fuel. One reason why it does not work well as a motor fuel today is that motors are not adapted to its use, and but one-half its real power is obtained when alcohol is used in an engine intended for gasoline.

Friends and Their Uses.

Use your friends in such a way that they won't mind your using them, and also encourage them in using you the same way.

DIED.

SCHAFER—At Norwich, Conn., February 13, 1917, Sarah M., wife of the late Norman J. Schafer.

KERLEY—In this city, February 13, 1917, Margaret Kerley, wife of the late James Kerley.

SUBMARINE WORK LESS EFFECTIVE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Feb. 14.—Shipping circles here today were confident that the British Admiralty has found a way to circumvent Germany's unrestricted submarine warfare about the British Isles. Two big liners, both heavily laden with munitions, have slipped through the cordon and docked safely at Liverpool.

The Adriatic of the White Star Line reached Liverpool Monday, according to cable advices today. The Cunarder Carmania reached Liverpool this morning. Both sailed from New York several days after the submarine decree went into effect.

The Cunarder Carpathia reached New York today, the seventh British liner to make port in the last two days. She brought no passengers.

ABOUT THE FOLKS.

Anna Brazee, who underwent an operation for appendicitis at the Benedictine Sanitarium, is doing nicely.

Carlyle Sutton of Union College spent the week end and holiday at the home of Miss Lucinda Rich on Lucas avenue.

Dr. McCreery, who has been the guest for several days of Proprietor Charles A. Hungerford of The Eagle Hotel, has returned home.

Miss Marion Dick of Kingston spent the week end and Lincoln's Birthday with her friend, Miss Helen DuBois, in Wallkill.

Mr. and Mrs. George DuBois and daughter, Dorothy, of Oswego, are visiting at the residence of James E. Leverich on Lindsley avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Personeus of Highland Springs, Va., formerly of Kingston, are receiving congratulations over the birth of a daughter.

Mrs. Harry Delamater and daughter, Ruth, of Lake Mohonk spent a few days with relatives in town and also attended the meetings in the tabernacle.

Miss Mattie Simpson, who has been spending some time with her brother, Earl, at 179 Elmendorf street, has returned to her home at Kerhonkson Heights.

Mrs. Jacob A. Lay, who nearly five months ago fell and sustained two fractures of one of her lower limbs and a split knee cap, was taken to New York today for surgical treatment by eminent specialists. X Ray photographs of the injured parts reveal faulty setting of the bones, and a very painful operation is now necessary to avoid the necessity of amputating the limb. Mrs. Lay has suffered intensely since the accident which disabled her. Sympathetic friends are hopeful for her ultimate complete recovery.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.

The interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery. Mrs. Kerley was one of the best known and liked business women in the city. Years ago her husband opened the dry goods store at 33 East Strand, and at his death the business was continued by his wife. Mrs. Kerley was active in business up to some time ago when she became ill, and was finally forced to give up active supervision of the store. The dry goods store is one of the oldest stores on the Strand. Mrs. Kerley is survived by two sisters, Miss Elizabeth Roche of New York city and Mrs. Peter Hamilton of this city, one brother, John Roche of New York city, and two nieces of this city, the Misses Elizabeth and Mary Hamilton.

Humility.

Mental education has for its first and last step humility. But the humility will not be founded on comparison of ourselves with the imperfect standards around us, but on the increase of that internal knowledge which alone can make us aware of our internal wants.—Faraday.

THE REAL NAME OF JAMES BROWN

Emilio De Dominicis, better known as Jimmy Brown, died at 6 o'clock this morning from the effects of the bullet wound suffered Monday evening while driving through Tongore. His alleged assailant, Rosario Genova, is now in the custody of the sheriff. On order of the district attorney Dr. A. A. Stern and Dr. Frederick Snyder performed an autopsy and the remains were removed to N. D. J. Murph's undertaking establishment on Broadway to await the orders of Coroner Kelly.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Feb. 14.—Around noon a firmer tone was in evidence and issues generally sold materially above the initial levels. Business, however, was extremely dull. Steel Common rallied to 106¾, and good gains were made in other important shares. Money loaning at 2½ per cent.

There were irregular movements in a number of issues in the late afternoon. Mexican Petroleum declined to 85½, a loss of four points in all and American smelting 1⅝ to 96. Texas Company dropped from 217½ to 215. Central Leather rose 2¼ to 86 and Cuba Cane Sugar over a point to 37⅝.

The tone was heavy at the close. New Haven was the weak feature of the last hour, selling down a point to a new low record of 37½. Crucible Steel dropped a point to 63¾ and Union Pacific a point to 137¾. Steel Common closed steady at 105¾. Government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds irregular.

She Kissed the Waiter.

Two young women who had the table d'hote habit sat alone tonight in a red-ink establishment in the Forties. "I was silly last night," moaned one. "I came in here and no one whom I can tolerate was here. I felt alone and resentful. I kissed Mike, the waiter." "Yvonne! Yvonne!" wailed her companion, "why did you do that?" "Bah!" sneered Yvonne. "I had tonsilitis."—New York Sun.

The Prospector's Daughter

By ESTHER VANDEVEER

A prospector of mines, down on his luck, built a shelter for himself and his daughter, Margery, in the cleft of a rock.

One morning the prospector started out to be gone till noon. He had been away a couple of hours when Margery, who was sewing by a square cut in the boards intended for a window, saw a man come running toward her. Catching sight of the strange abode, an idea seemed to strike him. Pulling open the door, he was about to enter when he saw Margery. He closed the door behind him and said excitedly:

"I'm hunted for my life. I want to hide here."

Without any further word he ran to the back of the cleft, which narrowed as it extended inward, and finally reached a place where it was only wide enough to admit his body. But it was dark there, and he had this one chance if followed.

"What are they after you for?" asked Margery.

"They mistook me for a horse thief."

Margery knew that the punishment for horse stealing was hanging, and she turned pale. But she resumed her seat at the window and her sewing. Then she cast her eye to where her father's rifle stood against the rock, and she got up from her seat, and, taking the gun to the window, laid it at her feet.

"They're coming," she said presently in a quiet voice. "Stay where you are. Mebbe I can stand 'em off till paw comes home."

"For heaven's sake do!" was the only response.

Four mounted men came riding toward the improvised shelter. They were about to pass on when one of them noticed it. He reined in his horse and pointed to it. Margery heard him say that it was a good hiding place. Then they all rode toward it. Margery knew that if they searched it they would discover the fugitive. Taking up the rifle, she leveled it out through the window and called out:

"Hold on, there!"

The man pulled up and, peering before him, saw a girl sitting behind the window.

"What you want?" asked Margery.

"We're after a hoss thief. Seen anything of him?"

"No; I haven't seen any hoss thief."

The men consulted together, then said to Margery, "We're sorry to trouble you, but we must have a look inside your—your domicile."

"I can't let you do that. I don't know who you are. You may want to steal somepin."

There was a burst of laughter at the suggestion that there was anything to steal. The men dismounted and were about to move toward the domicile when they heard the well known click of the cocking of a gun. They stopped short.

"Keep off," said Margery in a quiet voice.

"There's no gittin' in the rear," said one.

"No; there isn't," said another. "We've either got to go past the gal or keep out."

"It's my opinion he's there," said a third, "else she'd not be cuttin' these monkey shines. Say, little gal, you tell the feller that's hidin' behind your skirts to come out. We don't want to hurt you, but"—

Margery was not to be bluffed. She held the rifle to her shoulder, resting it on the window sill—or what served for one—and the men saw a pair of restless eyes taking in their slightest motion. Then they held another consultation, at the end of which they said to Margery that they were going to camp where they were and wait. This was not displeasing to Margery, for she expected her father would soon be back. Nevertheless she did not lower her rifle for a moment. The men settled themselves on the grass, filled their pipes and did what else they could to convince Margery that they would starve her out.

They had been there about twenty minutes when she saw her father standing at a distance surveying the scene. What interested him especially was his daughter covering the men before her humble home. He always carried a revolver on his tramps, and this time he had two. Suddenly the men heard behind them:

"Hands up, every one of you!"

Every pair of hands was raised. Then the prospector advanced, with a cocked revolver in each hand, while they were still also covered by Margery. Having been informed of the object of their visit, the prospector made an agreement with them that the stranger should stay where he was till the fact of his innocence or guilt could be determined. Then he was to be turned over to them or go free. The fugitive was called out and, being informed of the conditions, expressed himself satisfied, and all weapons were put aside. Turning to Margery, he said:

"You shall live in the handsomest house money can build. I own three-fourths the stock in the most profitable mine in these parts. You have saved my life and shall have your reward."

The young man's innocence was established, and he made good his words. Margery left her improvised residence and in time lived in the promised mansion. The man whose life she had saved lived there with her as her husband.

Faithful Women.

I tell you that women, as a rule, are more faithful than men—ten times more faithful. I never saw a man pursue his wife into the very ditch and dust of degradation and take her in his arms. I never saw a man stand at the shore where she was wrecked, waiting for the waves to bring back her corpse to his arms, but I have seen a woman with her white arms lift a man from the mire of degradation and hold him to her bosom as if he were an angel.—Ingersoll.

Tricky Dynamite.

"Perhaps nothing is more uncertain in the accident line than dynamite," said a dealer in the dangerous stuff. "You might drop a cartridge out of your hand and it would explode and tear your body to atoms. Another cartridge from the same case might be hurled from the top of a tall building and would land on the pavement like harmless wax, to be ground up under the wheels of heavy trucks and to be exploded with frightful havoc by the soft cushion tire of a bicycle."

Machine Works Fast.

An electrically-driven machine wraps lump sugar in individual papers at a speed of 7,500 lumps an hour.

A little sweet oil will remove finger prints from varnished furniture.

MAY HAVE THEIR OWN LABORATORY

Health Board Appoints Committee to Consider Question of Using County Laboratory, Now Closed, or Equipping One at City Hall for Testing Milk—Other Matters

The question of whether the board of health shall equip a small laboratory at the city hall for the purpose of testing milk, or whether an effort should be made to get in touch with the board of supervisors and see what arrangements could be made with regard to the board having the [illegible] the county [illegible] came up at the regular meeting of the board held on Tuesday afternoon, at which time Dr. [illegible] Norwood moved that the matter be referred to a committee to report back at the next monthly meeting. In March Mayor Canfield appointed as such a committee Commissioners McBride, Kaufman and Norwood.

The laboratory question was brought up at the meeting by Commissioner McBride who called attention to the fact that since the board of supervisors had refused to engage any bacteriologist to have charge of the county laboratory the place had been shut up. The health board had had all its milk tests made at the laboratory and were now shut off from keeping up such tests.

After some discussion it was brought out that the tests made at the county laboratory had been made in the past by Dr. Harold Clarke, the sanitary inspector of the board.

City Hall Laboratory

The equipment needed to equip a small laboratory for the purpose of testing milk would not be very expensive it was stated. Dr. Clarke's opinion was asked in regard to whether there was any room in the city hall that could be used for laboratory purposes and he called the attention of the board to the third floor of the city hall where there was plenty of room for this purpose.

The entire question was finally referred to the committee mentioned.

If the board decides to equip a small laboratory it will be placed in charge of Dr. Clarke for the purpose of his testing milk taken from the various dealers as he has done in the past.

Nurse Wants Compensation

Margaret Rieser of 520 Delaware avenue, a certified nurse, enclosed a bill for loss of two weeks time amounting to $[illegible]. In her claim she set forth that during the infantile paralysis epidemic she had been called to the house of Lafayette Moore, at Samsonville where she nursed a patient who had the disease. She was in quarantine in [illegible] after being released came to Kingston to her home where she was notified by Dr. Johnston, the health officer, that she would not be allowed to do any nursing for two weeks and it was for this two weeks she claims compensation for loss of time.

The board were of the impression that the health officer had done right [illegible] nursing as she had been caring for a case of the disease until two weeks had passed and she showed no symptoms of having caught the disease herself and referred the claim to the finance committee with instructions to disapprove the claim.

The Garbage Question

Spring soon will be here for the old reliable harbinger of spring, the garbage question—came up for discussion at the meeting. It was first brought to life by the reading of an application from Charles A. Wood of Lucas turnpike and Otto D. and John H. Short of Port Ewen asking for permits to collect garbage.

Some time ago the board attempted to block off the city in sections and assign these private garbage collectors to a certain district but this did not work. At the present time all garbage collectors must have permits from the board of health and be furnished with signs to place on their wagons.

After considerable discussion it was finally decided to take the matter up with the board of public works to consider the advisability of that latter board taking charge of the garbage question and that its collection come under the control of the B. P. W.

The permits asked for were granted subject to revocation at the pleasure of the board.

Those Present

Mayor Canfield presided at the meeting which was attended by Commissioners Michael McBride, Norwood, Huhne and Kaufman and the officers of the board.

Officers' Reports

The reports of the officers of the board were filed with the board and were as follows:

Kingston, N. Y., Feb. 1, 1917.
To the Honorable President and Members of the Board of Health of the City of Kingston:
I have the honor to submit to you my report for the month of January, 1917:

Contagious Diseases Reported

	January	[illegible]
[illegible]	1[illegible]	1[illegible]
Diphtheria	6	1[illegible]
Scarlet Fever	1	22
Chicken [illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Whooping Cough	0	[illegible]
Chicken Pox	4	[illegible]
Total	17	48

The small number of contagious cases is very gratifying. That it may be kept in those limits is our earnest wish. In order that all cases may be taken care of at the outset we would urge that any suspicious case be held in quarantine by the physician until such time as it is reported to the health department. One of the chief sources of contagion is that spread by the the school children in contact with a case just previous to its diagnosis. The state code provides for isolation of such persons of contact and their later return to school [illegible] being [illegible] obtained for the full period. This is graphically illustrated in the latest chart from the state department of health which we have on view here in the office.

Beginning this month the new amendments to the child labor law are in effect. Briefly the amendments restrict further [illegible] night messenger trade and also some [illegible] mercantile work. It also raises the education requirements which an applicant must attain before an employment certificate may be issued. The law provides that in addition to having attended school not less than one hundred and thirty [illegible] previous to the application those [illegible] of fourteen years but not yet fifteen [illegible] also show satisfactory evidence that they have graduated from a grammar school. Those applicants who are fifteen [illegible] still obtain an employment certificate under the same rules as at present.

The National Child Labor committee offered a very interesting exhibit the last three days of January. By their pictures and pamphlets they showed convincingly how great a work has been accomplished and what further aims they yet have for future welfare work. New York state is among the foremost in its care of its children.

Fifteen milk applications have been received this past month and the permits issued. Six [illegible] farms have been scored within the past six months this may be due and thus the delay of previous visits over [illegible].

Respectfully submitted,
(Signed) FRANK A. JOHNSTON, M. D.,
Health Officer.

Downie to Have Company?

BRUNETTES 24 BLONDES 14

The flaxen haired lassies of Kingston high school went down in defeat before the brunette team in a fast game in the school gymnasium yesterday afternoon.

In the first quarter both teams retained the goose egg with which the game commenced. At half time the brunettes had eight points as compared with their opponents six. Later in the third quarter the blondes took a brace and came near having a safe lead but during the last period of the game the swarthy crew ran away with the ball and when the play ended had twenty four points while their opponents had only fourteen. No points were made from foul baskets and only two were called during the whole game.

Both teams played a fine game. The blondes had the advantage of having nearly all the forwards in the school on their side while the victors could boast of nearly all the guards.

A larger attendance and more enthusiasm was manifested at this game between two home teams than is usually produced for an interschool game. The teams were made up as shown in the following table:

Junior-Senior Game

This afternoon the juniors and the seniors are scheduled to meet in basketball. Neither team of boys have had any practice and a good rough and ready game at which a big part of the school will be present is expected. Varsity men are barred from these interclass games and both teams will lose some good support because of this customary ruling.

Speaking of smoking sensibly—

WITH all their good taste, Fatimas would not be a sensible smoke if they weren't comfortable.

In other words, Fatimas would not be sensible if they ever bothered your throat or tongue; or if they didn't leave you feeling all right even after smoking more than usual.

Fatima Cigarettes never disturb. They can't. The milder tobaccos in their Turkish blend are in such perfect balance with the richer, fuller-flavored leaves as to off-set entirely all of that uncomfortable "oily heaviness" found in so many other cigarettes.
